POWERS AGREE IN SECRET AS REPLY TO JAPS

Private Pact Sounds Knell of Any Attempt to Stave Off Naval Building Race.

EVERY NATION FOR SELF

Three Democracies Scrap Last Limitations After Japan Refuses to Tell Plans.

WASHINGTON—The United States has entered into secret agreement with Great Britain and France to wipe out all limitations on naval building, it was learned today on high authority.

The tri-partite action is the democratic powers' answer to Japan's defiant refusal to divulge its naval program or agree to further disarmament.

The agreement between the three powers has been arrived at during private conversations which have followed receipt of Japan's reply to the powers' identical notes demanding information on reports Japan is building "super-battleships" of 46,000 tons, mounting 18-inch guns.

Naval Building Race On.

The private agreement sounded the death-knell of the last attempt by the major naval powers to stave off a world naval building race.

Henceforth, the lid will be off and it will be every nation for itself—to build as many warships, and as big warships, as the nation's economy can stand.

The decision scraps the last naval limitations treaty—the pact of 1936 at London between the United States, Britain and France, from which Japan brusquely withdrew on a demand that the 5-5-3 ratio of naval strength established at the Washington conference in 1922 be abolished and she be given parity with the American and British navies.

Retain One Feature.

Only one feature will be salvaged from the wreckage: The three democratic powers will continue to exchange confidential information on their building plans.

Death of the 1936 treaty will mean that in the future there will not only be no limitation on the size of battleships and the guns they are armed with, but the non-construction zone between cruisers

A Conscript For The New Army

Life has been one crisis after another to German Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, and he thrives on them. The sixth year of his reign started off with a new one—involving the army—but he came through that neatly enough, and capped it this week by obtaining in Austria a cabinet sympathetic to the Nazis.

His appointment Jan. 30, 1933, by President Hindenburg shook a Europe apprehensive of his violent anti-Red, anti-Jewish policies.

1933: Another crisis, and dozens of deaths in the blood purge of June 30, 1934.

By 1935 Hitler felt strong enough to flout the Versailles treaty by proclaiming Germany's rearmament.

Next year the Reichswehr, under his orders reoccupied the demilitarized Rhineland.

In 1937 Hitler's anti-communist campaign crystallized in a Fascist axis with Italy and Japan.

And now, the German military crisis is past, and Hitler completely controls the German military system. This, added to his successful negotiation with Austria, makes him more powerful than ever.

TELLS PROBERS DAVEY GIVEN $25,000 'FEE'

Witness Says General Motors Contributed on Promise of State Business.

BARES HOTEL MEETINGS

Governor Named Poulson as 'Dear Friend' Handling Money, Probers Hear.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Lee Bradley, an asphalt salesman, told senate investigators today General Motors Corp had contributed $25,000 to Gov. Martin L. Davey's 1934 campaign fund with the understanding the company would get half the state's motor business. The witness said Davey was to receive half of Bradley's 10-20 per cent commissions from General Motors.

Bradley said Davey had told a General Motors representative that "a very dear and near political friend" in Ohio would handle the funds. The witness asserted Davey then produced a paper bearing "the name of Francis W. Poulson," chairman of the Democratic state committee.

Bradley testified he at one time told Poulson "you're paying me because you're afraid I'll expose you." He said he received about $9,000 from Poulson between December 1934 and December 1936.

Teh witness said he covered 22 states, interviewing public utility officials, "making arrangements for campaign contributions."

Met At N. Y. Hotel.

Bradley testified this arrangement was made at a conference in a New York hotel attended by Davey, Bradley and L. L. Tramper, whom the witness described as a representative of General Motors A four-hour conference was held in Davey's room at the Hotel Biltmore, Bradley said.

"What did you say?" asked James Metzenbaum, committee counsel.

"We discussed the possibility of Davey's being a candidate for governor, and if General Motors would contribute to his campaign fund, and if they would favor General Motors with purchases."

Bradley said he did not want to give further details, explaining "I would rather have documentary evidence to back this statement up—it's dynamite."

Metzenbaum, however, said the hearing was "informal" and ask-

HITLER SPEEDING NAZIFICATION OF NEIGHBOR STATE

Dictator Orders Austrian Minister To Rout Communism, Bring Countrymen Under Complete Swastika Rule Directs Secret Police Policy.

BULLETIN

VIENNA—(INS)—A counter-movement to [illegible] fuehrer Adolf Hitler's Nazification of Austri[illegible] launched by Catholic circles here today. Plans wa[illegible] for a convocation of bishops shortly after Feb. 20, [illegible] Hitler is due to address the German reichstag [illegible] situation. BERLIN—Unworried by reports of dissatisfaction across the border, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler laid down the law to newly-Nazified Austria today.

Receiving Dr. Alfred Seyss-Inquart, Austrian minister of the interior, with a Nazi salute that was promptly and smartly returned, the Fuehrer gave orders for a sweeping anti-communist purge in Austria and for a thorough domestic clean-up to bring Germany's neighbor under 100 per cent swastika rule.

He went even further and put Dr. Seyss-Inquart to work studying the methods of the Gestapo, the Nazi secret police, with instructions to create a similar all-powerful organization in Austria.

During the meeting, it was learned, Hitler gave Seyss-Inquart his complete endorsement and promised him full support in the task ahead.

By stamping out communism, the fuehrer pointed out, Austrian Aryans will be re-established as "first citizens," automatically relegating Jews to second place.

Circulates Nazi Books.

The fuehrer was believed to have drafted plans for wide circulation in Austria of books expounding Nazi educational and political ideals. Important Nazi volumes such as Hitler's "Mein Kampf" henceforth will be sold openly in Austria.

Clearly indicating in what direction the power lies, Dr. Seyss-Inquart came to Berlin the moment he had been firmly established as Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's minister of the interior and nominal police head.

Greeted at the station by Schutz-Staffel Leader Dr. Keppler, Seyss-Inquart was taken immediately to Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Gestapo. Himmler kept him for an hour and then took him to the foreign office to meet Foreign Minister Hoachim von Ribbentrop.

Another lengthy conference followed, and at noon the obscure Vienna lawyer catapulted into history as spearhead of Austrian Nazidom, was ushered into Hitler's presence.

The fuehrer wore his customary brown uniform. He never returned Seyss-Inquart's acknowledgement of the salute, so he immediately raised his right hand in the "heil" which is the password of national socialism.

With a military precision that belied his legalistic background, Seyss-Inquart snapped back a Nazi salute to the leader.

Hitler then launched into his admonitions to Seyss-Inquart. Official circles said the Fuehrer had given the Austrian Nazi minister "carte blanche"—tantamount to orders that every vestige of communism in Austria must be wiped out ruthlessly.

Despite all rumors that the so-called "cold anschluss" is having rocky going in Austria, official circles here regard it as a foregone conclusion Austria will openly subscribe to the German-Japanese-Italian pact against communism.

It was assumed also without question that the domestic machinery of Austria would be swiftly reorganized to correspond with the well-known policies of the Reich. The domestic shakeup is regarded as a "minor job" which Seyss-Inquart and his aides are able to carry out by

CIO UNIONS TO PROBE RELIEF

Plan Inquiry Into County Setup and Reason For Delay In Granting Aid.

Officials of the Richland county CIO council, conprising 12 labor unions, announced today their organization would launch an investigation of the relief set-up in the city and county.

The announcement followed a meeting of the council last night at headquarters on North Park street, and comes as an aftermath of repeated attempts of labor groups to obtain prompter action on relief applications.

"We feel that our obligations are not only with organized labor but with the unemployed and relief clients of the city and county as well." A. C. Bishop, secretary of the council said today.

He added that some of the A. F. of L. affiliates in the city had agreed to join in the investigation to see why it allegedly requires "six weeks for relief investigators to get around to handling relief cases."

County relief officials have refused to meet with representatives of any labor union other than the Delano lodge in a discussion of the relief problem. O. H. Bosley, representative of the United Rubber Workers of America, told the council last night.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners, said delegations from the Atlas lodge and the Workers' Alliance had called on them and that the latter's delegates had urged commissioners to demand faster handling of applications for relief and to grant help to a number of unemployed factory workers families who were not on the relief rolls.

"We told them," Mitchell said, "that investigations are in charge of the county relief director and it is up to him and his investigators to decide who needs help most."

At least one member of each CIO affiliated union in the city will attend the Town Hall meeting tonight to request that one night be set aside for the discussion of the relief situation, Bishop said.

Hitler Scores In Austria But Duce Blocks His Path

Writer Says Rome-Berlin Axis Strained, Not Bolstered by Nazi 'Dry Putsch.'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Although Chancellor Hitler has won a new battle in the struggle over Austria, he has not yet won the country and his rival, Premier Mussolini, has not given up. So says H. R. PARIS—Chancellor Hitler has won another battle in the endless struggle for Austria, but he has not yet won the country, and Premier Mussolini has not yet given it up.

The conflict between the two dictators still lies at Brenner Pass, leading from Italy into Austria, despite every effort to conceal it.

Hitler's newest triumph in Austria has not strengthened, but has strained, the Rome-Berlin axis.

Duce 'Pressured.'

By his need of German help in Spain and by his desire to use Germany in his constant "war" with England, Mussolini was induced to give silent consent to the Nazis' "dry putsch" in Vienna. But he and Chancellor Kurt

SAYS WORST OF SMALLPOX OVER

Rehder Believes Crisis Past; Immunization In Schools Completed; 6 New Cases.

With the immunization program in the city and county schools completed, and the release of another family from quarantine, the crisis in the smallpox outbreak is apparently past. Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said today.

"Although new cases of the disease probably will be reported daily for a while, we believe the worst is over," Dr Rehder added. "The new cases undoubtedly are the result of contacts made before these persons were vaccinated, because immunity is usually established after three weeks."

Meanwhile six new cases of the the disease were reported by the health department in the past 24 hours bringing the totals to 71 reported in the county in the past two weeks. Three of the new cases are adults and three students. Only one is in the city.

The new cases are Mrs. Dean

OUT FOR DAVEY

Kallmerten Says He's 'Logical Man For Third Term.'

Emphasizing that he was speaking as an individual, E. B. Kallmerten, chairman of the Richland county Democratic executive committee, said he considered Gov. Martin L. Davey a "logical man for a third term."

Kallmerten, named yesterday as a member of a committee of seven seeking to "draft" Gov. Davey as a candidate for a third term, said he had not yet received petitions that were being circulated in Columbus today.

"It is my individual opinion that Davey is the only logical man for governor, and when petitions arrive here, they will be taken care of," he added.

Although Gov. Davey has refused to comment whether he would seek a third term, it is expected in political circles that he will announce his intentions soon. Petitions had been distributed today to employes of the state division for the aged, with instructions to "fill them with signatures and return them by Mar. 5."

'Hands Off' Policy of Austria Adopted By Britain, France

(By United Press)

LONDON—Both Great Britain and France have virtually abandoned Austria and will make no move to block Adolf Hitler's plans in the German sister state, it was indicated today after a conference between Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, and Georg Franckenstein, Austrian minister.

From a reliable source it was learned that Eden not only confirmed that Great Britain is not prepared to give any support to Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg in the event of graver developments, but the British official attitude is becoming increasingly "reserved."

Well informed observers here said this would seem to indicate that Britain as well as France, with whom the British have been in hourly contact since the Vienna crisis developed, are convinced that it is impossible to try to check Hitler's plans in Austria.

The uncertain attitude was indicated in statements from official quarters which said that no representations by the British government have been actually made in Berlin although informed sources last night had indicated that an agreement for such a step had been reached with the French.

The only approaches to Berlin and Vienna were made, it was reported to obtain "information" as to what occurred at the Berchtesgaden conference between Hitler and Schuschnigg.

Austria Stirred By Dash Of Minister To See Hitler

(By United Press)

VIENNA—The dramatic dash to Berlin by Dr. Arthur von Seyss-Inquart, new Austrian minister of interior, assumed international importance today in negotiations between Austria and Germany.

In Berlin, it was asserted, he will see Fuehrer Adolph Hitler, Field Marshall Hermann Goering, Hitler's right hand man, and Joachim Von Ribbentrop, new German foreign minister.

It was understood here that Baron Franz Von Papen, German special ambassador to Austria, intended to leave today to join in the talks and it was reported that on the result hinged momentous developments.

It was an open secret today that something had gone wrong. It was asserted that Fuehrer Adolph Hitler was not satisfied with concessions which the government had made to Austrian Nazis. Sources close to the government said that Hitler insisted on demands of an international nature, such as Austrian adhesion to the German-Japanese-Italian "anti-communist" pact.

There were increasing indications of alarm among former socialists and workers, and among the left wing of the Christian Social party of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, especially among peasant members.

Nazi sources hinted at developments that would include not only Austria but Hungary in a gigantic diplomatic set-up based on the "Berlin-Rome" axis of co-operation and the "Rome protocols" for co-operation of Italy, Austria and Hungary—a set-up that might involve the equivalent of a military alliance.

BUYS ROCK, SLAG

County Pays $7,000 For Road Repair Materials.

Richland county today had contracted with the Erie railroad for the purchase of approximately 10,000 tons of rock and slag ballast at a cost of $7,000 for the rebuilding of county roads damaged by unusual weather conditions.

The county will use its trucks to haul the materials from the abandoned Erie right-of-way near Pavonia where the tracks were relocated last year.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword said the ballast, which is made up of small rocks, cinders, gravel and slag, will be used for filling trenches in the county roads and as a base for re-building a number of the gravel and stone thoroughfares which have been broken up by the freezing and thawing.

Graders already have been put in service on county routes to smooth out the deep trenches left by trucks and wagons.

LETS CONTRACT

City to Buy 500 Garbage Cans From Martin Hardware.

The city board of control announced today that it had awarded to the Martin Hardware company the contract for 500 garbage cans and 250 lids on the firm's low bid of $1.18 per unit, or 98 cents per can and 20 cents per lid.

The Martin hardware, one of the four concerns who entered bids, was four cents lower than its closest competitor, George W. Rowe, whose base bid was 98 cents per can and 24 cents per lid, with a two per cent discount for payment in 10 days.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said the Martin bid was not only selected over the others because of th low price, but also because of the universal cover, which he said would fit at least 20 per cent of the garbage cans now in use in the city garbage department.

WELCOMES QUIZ

Prosecutor Ready to Defend Self In CIO Action.

WARREN—(AP)—County Prosecutor Paul J. Reagan said in a recent statement he would welcome an investigation of his handling of the county's case against Gus Hall, CIO leader in last summer's steel strike who was indicted for possession of explosives and then permitted to plead guilty to a charge of malicious destruction of property.

Seven others indicted with Hall pleaded guilty to the original charge last summer. Four are serving penitentiary terms and three are on parole. Hall was fined $500 and costs on the lesser charge. Prosecutor Reagan said the evidence against Hall was weak.

The John Q. Public League, formed during the strike, recommended an investigation of the case Saturday.

VARIETY MARKS LIBRARY'S LIST OF NEW BOOKS

Additions Include Fiction as Well as Volumes Dealing With Current Problems.

Several new and interesting books of fiction and a number of worthwhile books on current problems and topics make up the list of new books added to the Public library this week.

"Never Say Goodbye" by Julia Truitt Yenni is a gay and touching story of small-town American life. Through the eyes of a little girl, Chlo, you see the activities of her very amusing and entertaining family, the Dillons, who live in a small Louisiana town.

A story of the lives of ordinary people in Hollywood, "To See Ourselves," by Rachel Field and Arthur Pederson, shows the heartbreaking obstacles that confront anyone who wants to get into the motion picture business.

"Lena" by Roger Vercel, translated from the French by Warre B. Wells, won the 1934 Goncourt Prize. It is the story of a French lieutenant, De Queslain, who was wounded and captured by the Bulgarians during the World war and was cared for by a beautiful nurse named Lena.

The other four fiction volumes are "Let Me Die Tuesday," by Miller; "Marooned With Murder," Walling; "Roaring Tower and Other Short Stories, by Gibbons; and "You Must Break Out Sometime, and Other Stories," by Beachcroft.

Explains Words.

Stuart Chase attempts to clarify the English language and its use, by explaining words, in his book "The Tyranny of Words."

Of particular interest now because of recent dispatches from Washington is Ferdinand Lundberg's "America's Sixty Families" in which he tells who owns and spends the large fortunes of today and how they are used.

"A Reporter At The Papal Court" by Thomas B Morgan is a narrative of the reign of Pope Pius XI. It contains eye-witness accounts of the color and magnificence of ceremonies attended by the writer, who has made a study of their significance and history.

An addition to the John Baxter Black Memorial collection is "The Folklore of Capitalism" by Thurman Wesley Arnold.

Four new books on the subject "World Economic Cooperation" should interest all who plan to attend next Monday's lecture of the series in the Institute of International Understanding. "Studies in World Economics" by George Douglas Howard Cole is a book of essays which assert that economic conceptions and the theories built upon them need far reaching revision in the light of the developing forces in the world of today. "World Finance: 1935-1937" by Paul Einzig points out the consequences of following a mistaken monetary policy.

"Limits of Land Settlement; a Report on Present-day Possibilities" was jointly prepared under the direction of Isaiah Bowman by ten specialists. "Raw Materials in Peace and War" by Eugene Staley demonstrates that modern industrial civilization rests upon a raw material base that is unavoidably international, while political control over resources is national.

Other non fiction this week includes:

"Four Ways of Philosophy," by Edman; "Divorce," Lichtenberger; "The Recovery of Ideals," Harkness; "World Immigration," Davie; "Cooperative Enterprise," Baker; "Wild Birds at Home," Herrick; "Bird Flight," Aymar; "History of American Sailing Ships," Chapelle; "Dog Owner's Manual," Rine, and "Modern Ways with Babies" by Hurlock.

NINE NAMED IN HEADLEY WILL

Studio Partner Bequeaths Estate To Relatives, Friends.

The will of the late Miss Lelle Headley, part-owner of the Headley-Perez studio, providing for the distribution of her estate to nine relatives and friends, had been filed today in probate court.

Drawn Jan. 29, just two weeks before her death, the will bequeaths the personal property to three sisters, Minnie C. Baird, Dora M. Rowling and Mollie Sherman, and household goods to Zelma Martin.

A bequest of $500 each in cash is made to the two children of Albert Perez, other partner in the Headley-Perez studio. A niece, Maude Tugge, is bequeathed $500 and a brother, Fred Headley, $25. A brother, Frank, against whom Miss Headley held a $200 note, is released from obligation.

Atty. W. H. Gifford is nominated executor.

OPENS MARCH 1

Sale of 1938 Auto Licenses Gets Under Way Soon.

Auto license plates for 1938 will go on sale March 1 at the Richland Automobile club office, and may be placed on cars March 10, Deputy Registrar Frank Beverstock said today. The deadline for 1937 tags will be midnight, March 31.

This year's plates have black letters on white background, the same color combination of four years ago. At the bottom of the tags a covered wagon drawn by an ox team is shown with the words: "150th Anniversary Northwest Territory." In commemoration of the event which is being celebrated this year.

Beverstock said that all of the special combination of letters for license prefixes already have been reserved at the office of the state registrar of motor vehicles, except those in the letters X, Y and Z, and that he has been notified that no further special combinations will be issued.

Mansfield will again be a central point for the issuance of truck and trailer licenses, being the only point between Akron and Lima, and between Cleveland and Columbus where they may be obtained.

FINKEL PUTS 'EVIL EYE' TO WORK AT PRICE, HANGS CURSE ON FIGHTERS.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(INS Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—There's a slight droop to the man's left eye, half-wise, half-droll. But that doesn't bother him. Bother him? How I do rant sometimes! Why, he wouldn't be without it. It's his racket, his dodge, his ace in the hole. It keeps him in nutriment down at the dairy lunch.

Pretty soon, in fact, he'll be doing so good with the sophisticated, but strangely gullible fraternity in and behind the boxing trade that he'll be having business cards and everything.

Do you, for instance, want a curse put on your opponent for the evening? Do you want him knocked out, beaten, degraded, disgraced? If so, see Mr. Ben Finkel. Better still, see the "Inc" part of the firm, namely, Mr. Lew Diamond. He's Ben's manager and will rent you The Evil Eye for a nominal fee, $25 a glower, to be exact. The rest is very simple.

Ben simply walks into the victim's dressing room before the fight, impales him with beady stare, bows formally and walks out. He has put his curse on the man and he can't win. Everybody believes this implicity, including the subject and his manager, with the result that when they see him coming, they rush to bolt the doors, shouting:

"The Evil Eye! The Evil Eye! Get him out of here."

Mr. Hymie Caplin employs Benjamin regularly, and with considerable profit. Not so long ago, Mr Caplin had three fighters on a card in Brooklyn, hired Ben's eye for three demonstrations, won three decisions and handed over $75, with gusto. He even took Ben all the way to Pittsburgh where Billy Conn was 2 to 1 over Mr. Caplin's Solly Krieger.

BEN re-arranged all that. He strolled in upon Conn and his menage in the dressing room, fixed the bewildered assemblage with a stern, intent gaze, nodded affably and walked out. Conn didn't have a chance after that. Not long thereafter, Ben went on the radio with the Bob (Believe it or Not) Ripley hour and told all about the Evil Eye business for a fee of $125. Previously he had been telling everybody else for nothing.

"Yes," he used to say, musingly, "I have an Evil Eye all right. I've always had it, ever since I was a kid. All I have to do is look at a guy and say fiercely to myself 'I'm giving you the eye. You'll be sorry.' Why, I did that to Mike Jacobs when he refused me a couple of boxing tickets. And what happened?"

"He fell off a ladder a week later and sprained his ankle."

There's only one thing Ben says he can't do. He can't give you the Eye over the telephone or through the mail, which is reassuring. I was afraid for a minute that the fellow was going to start a syndicate.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The greenskeepers of the country met here today to figure out ways and means to keep the golfers in good humor.

The job calls for diplomacy and a knowledge of how to fight the Japanese beetle, said members of the American Association of Greenskeepers, which will be known in the future as the Greenskeeping Superintendents' association. The name was changed by the convention yesterday.

RAMS SPORT BEST MARK

Madison Goes Into County Tourney With Record of Four Crowns.

Madison high school is accorded only an outside chance to regain the Richland county basketball tournament championship in the elimination to get under way in the Mansfield gym Saturday night, but it sports the best all-time tournament record.

The Rams have won the tournament title four times in the 13-year history of the Class B high school classic, and finished as runner-up twice.

Can Tie Madison.

Ontario and Plymouth are the only schools which have a chance to tie the Madison record this year. Each school has won the title three times, Ontario winning the crown three years in a row.

Ontario is one of the pre-tournament favorites, and can hang up its fourth straight championship this year. The Warriors recently cinched the county league crown.

Shiloh, Twin-Valley league champion, which is regarded as one of Ontario's chief rivals, has won the tournament only once. Butler, another team possessing championship possibilities, has never won the title, but has been runner-up twice.

In addition to Butler, the only county schools which have never been crowned champion are Lexington, Bellville, Union and Adario.

Play In Opener.

The opening tournament games Saturday will pit Lexington against Plymouth and Madison against Ontario. The winner will advance to the second round to be staged Thursday, Feb. 24.

Marion Plans Gloves Show

C. of C. to Stage Amateur Fights In March.

Initial plans are underway for Marion's 1938 Golden Gloves tournament to be held late in March under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic union. Elimination bouts will be held March 22 with succeeding rounds on March 24-29-31.

Entry will be open to all athletes with the exception of those who are unable to register under the A. A. U. amateur regulations. Last year's tourney attracted 50 youthful leather-pushers from 12 north-central Ohio towns and cities.

The tourney is being sponsored jointly by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Y. M. C. A. Athletes may obtain A. A. U. registration cards and tournament entry blanks through Chairman R. N. Heminger, P. O. Box 25, Marion, Ohio.

Among last year's entries were four fighters from Mansfield: Carl Woodson, David Bonds, Albert Bucker and Beauford Glover. Glover fought his way to the lightweight championship by defeating Cast. Ramsey of Galion in the finals of the Novice division.

WIN IN LAST MINUTE

Coaches Hand Lodi Quintet First Defeat in 12 Games.

Maxell's last minute basket enabled the Richland county coaches to defeat the Lodi Vets 46 to 47 on the Madison court last night. The victory was a welcome one to the coaches who bowed earlier to Lodi. The defeat was the first in 12 games for the hoopsters. Lorry Sallis was the offensive star, collecting 16 points. Falconer led the visitors with 12.

CHAPTER XXXI

Thirteen...that caused the new tenant quiet amusement, mainly on Judge Pomphrette's account, for that jurist owned a half-shamed streak of superstition. However, if and when he visited the new quarters, he would be too outraged at the staggering rental to pay much attention to minor calamities.

She considered her new home as being furnished with good taste for the most part. To assure herself, she had the rooms scrutinized by an interior decorator who, when he discovered there was no starry-eyed customer to deal with, contented himself with reasonable recommendations.

The next problem was the help. Caradad had no definite ideas beyond maid and a butler. The rental agents came to her aid by referring her to a dependable source of supply. Thither she went and made known her two wants and was favored by fortune beyond all expectation.

The first recruit for the household staff was a personable maid named Marie whose references were all that they should have been. The greatest prize, however, was a butler who would have been an instant success in the films. He was hauteur personified and answered to the name of Wilberforce. He unbent sufficiently to let his new mistress know that occasionally he had been called Wilber. But Caradad would have none of it. He was Wilberforce.

There was but one drawback to Wilberforce. When he was alone with his employer, he persisted in being human. He discovered at once that Miss Vardell was totally inexperienced. With infinite tact, he let her know how many members constituted her required retinue, of what their duties consist, the wages that were in order. He had a way of conveying such information that he seemed only to be echoing and approving Caradad's own ideas. It was rather fascinating to interview the applicants and to pretend that it was an old story.

The quickness with which she had found her apartment and the completeness of its appointments made it relatively easy to keep the whole affair a secret. Caradad was rather vague when she answered Terry's interested queries. She had looked at several places, she admitted, but was not going to be rushed.

There were one or two more applicants to interview and Caradad requested they come to the new apartment where she was spending most of her time. Early one forenoon, she was rather startled by a subdued cough from Wilberforce, followed by the announcement that a gentleman was calling.

"Oh. You mean some one from the employment office? I..."

"Pardon me, ma'am. A gentleman is asking for you." There was a hint of reproof in the butler's voice, and Caradad hurried to her drawing-room. To her amazement, John Severance occupied the center of the expensive rug. He was standing with his feet apart, hands behind his back, staring about him with unqualified disapproval.

"Well?" he greeted in a challenging fashion.

"Good morning..." Caradad managed. "How did you know I was here?"

"Simple enough. I dropped in at your agents' a while ago and they told me you had leased this place. It was quite in order. I happen to own the building."

"O," she said faintly. Then, "Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you, no. May I ask what all this is about?"

"Of course. I decided that I wanted to have a home."

"I see. You wanted a home. I infer that you are about to marry and go to housekeeping."

"But I'm not! It's just for myself. I'm tired of the hotel — really no privacy at all. I wanted some place where I could be at home to my friends — as I am now," she finished with a smile.

Severance refused to be mollified. He looked about the huge room and his scowl deepened. "It's hard to believe that it was any idea of yours," he grudged.

"Of course it was," Caradad replied with some spirit. "All my own idea."

"I see. You want to run a place like Nick Tankersley's. It won't be any home—nothing but a menagerie. And certainly you weren't cut out for a zoo keeper. How old are you?"

"Quite of legal age," she told him with unruffled candor. "You're thinking it would be nice if you could have a guardian appointed for me. It's ever so much too late."

"Why in the world you want to go in for all this, I don't know. You'll be overrun with parasites in no time. Tell me, Caradad... what are you doing it for? You don't belong in a place like this or among the people who will come here."

"I told you." She was trying to cover her surprise at hearing him call her by her name. "I guess I'm only human. I've wished all my life that I could do the things they do in books. Now, I can. I even have a butler."

"So I noticed. He looks as if he were out of a book, too."

"Wilberforce is rather a dear —if he likes you," she defended.

"Umph. All I hope is that your native good sense will come to your rescue before it's too late. If you want to break your lease any time, see me. But don't make it too long because I'm sailing for Australia in a few months."

"Oh, really!" An unconscious little sigh betrayed her.

"I am. I shouldn't bother about you, but I hate like the devil to leave you in a mess like this. I wish you'd be honest with me. Does all this sort of thing really appeal to you?"

"It's funny," she replied musingly. "I didn't suppose I would say this to anybody but myself. No. I don't like it at all. I don't belong here. These people really don't interest me—much. I don't understand them and they'll never understand me. I'm afraid of this whole thing—I'm even afraid of Wilberforce. There....." A suspicious quiver was in the last word. But Caradad laughed.

"I knew it all the time." Severance said gently, thoughtfully. "Why do you think you want to go through with it?"

"Well, I guess I sort of dared myself to."

"I think I may understand. I wish you luck. There's nothing I can do—wish there were."

"Oh, but there is! I'm going to have a housewarming and I want you to come."

"All right. I will—much as I hate the general ordeal. Let me know when it is."

When Terry Cantine's turn came to see the new home, one night after dinner, he not only was as impressed as Caradad had foreseen but was frankly enthusiastic.

"By George!" he exclaimed, after a tour of the premises, "I didn't suppose you were going after it on any such a grand scale, Dad. It's really great! I'm glad I know you," he laughed. "Makes me feel as though I had an interest in it . . ."

"I hope it will seem like home to you," Caradad said a trifle wistfully, then made haste to add, "It's a big place for one small person isn't it? I'll rattle around in it all by myself. I shall expect lots of company—all the time."

"You'll have it, never fear," he smiled. "Once your friends get wind of this, you'll have them hanging around night and day—especially if they know about that liquor locker you have. Is this Cuthbert Cadwalder of yours a mixing artist, or will I have to give him a few lessons?"

"Hush! His name is Wilberforce. Of course he knows all about drinks and things. He bought it all himself."

"You don't say! Then the man's a marvel, no less. I was glancing over some of the labels and was sure you'd called in an expert purveyor. How about sampling his skill with a rye highball? Permissible.

"If you like. I don't care for anything. Will you ring for Wilberforce?"

"I'd do anything to hear you ask that question, Dad? Your nonchalance is superb."

While enjoying his drink, Terry evinced a sudden interest in the housewarming plans. When was it going to be? How many guests? Who were on the list?

It was the moment Caradad had been dreading, with a helpless shrug, she admitted, "To be perfectly honest, Terry, I don't know. I can trust all the—well, the mechanical details to Wilberforce. He's a perfect butler. But you know as well as I do that I never tried to be hostess at a formal party. I'm afraid I don't even know how to start."

"Umm . . mm." Terry considered thoughtfully.

Caradad waited, outwardly calm but tense. If Terry were to suggest that she enlist Gerta Greenway's experienced help, she would be in favor of calling the party off. Gerta was the logical solution to the dilemna, but she felt that she couldn't bear the idea coming from Terry. Gerta seemed to be his answer to everything.

"Well," he offered sagely, "It's important, of course, that you have the right people. You'll naturally want to draw on that bunch you met at Nick's two brawls—some of them. But there are plenty of others you ought to know, people who can do a lot for you socially. That's really important."

"Yes, I suppose it is."

"I don't want to barge in, Dad, but after you've decided on those you particularly want, I'll be glad to fix up a list. People who are really worth while and who will be congenial. You want your first party to be a success. After that, you'll find yourself swimming along fine."

"That would be awfully nice of you, Terry."

"I'll be very glad to act as your social secretary."

Caradad smiled resignedly. "I expect Gerta would help me, if I asked her—tell me how to act, and all that sort of thing . . ."

"Wouldn't wonder at all, Dad."

In the busy days that followed, Dad on many occasions found herself wondering who was giving the party, anyway. It was her own fault, but she had been gently but firmly relegated to the position of a fifth wheel.

Terry had been as good as his word in the matter of making up the guest list. The names meant nothing whatever to the hostess, although Terry explained patiently why it was desirable to have this lone and that one. The number of these desirables was legion.

Then there was Gerta Greenway. More than once, Caradad regretted her spirit of self-sacrifice in suggesting that Gerta be called upon. Yet her innate sense of fairness let her know that she would have been in a dreadful predicament without this friend's enthusiastic aid. There was the matter of the flowers, for instance. And it was Gerta who suggested the services of a caterer, and the name of a dependable concern. Even the impeccable Wilberforce seemed to succumb to Mrs. Greenway's managerial attitude. One thing that didn't help Gerta's assumption that she was being given carte blanche in the matter of expense.

Dad's experiences at Nick's made her almost certain that the rooms would be crowded, and excessively noisy when the important night came. Her apprehensions were more than verified.

For what seemed endless hours, she stood in the drawing-room, with Terry and Gerta in attendance, meeting strangers, saying vavuous things, wearing a frozen smile, enduring curious stares... privately loathing it all, herself included. After a few civilities, the arrivals gravitated instinctively in the direction of the liquid refreshments and the hubbub grew apace.

It was even worse when she was released from the receiving line. Friendly nods, smiles and a few words from the busy groups. That was all. Nick Tankersley was a help, but he was obviously a little the worse for wear when he arrived and proved it by remarking confidentally to Caradad, "Nice party Terry's throwing—business must be picking up."

Severance was late, as usual, but proved such a lifesaver that Caradad could have thrown her arms about him and wept. But he seemed to still be laboring under the idea that he should not pay her any marked attention. And she sensed that he was not having a good time, that he disapproved of it all—herself included, no doubt.

(To Be Continued.)

MY FRIENDS AND I WERE SCARED

Effective Way Found to Break Up This Long-Standing Cold.

"Last fall I caught a heavy cold that turned into Flu and it settled on my lungs. No medicine I used seemed to help it any. I began to lose weight, and I coughed a great deal. My bowels would not work without physics, my kidneys became bad and I had severe pains in my back and shoulders. My friends and I were scared.

"One old neighbor brought me over a half bottle of World's Tonic. She said I needed strength to throw off the cold, and she called World's Tonic "bottled energy." More to please her than anything else, I took it as directed. That half bottle helped me wonderfully, and the next bottle cleared up the cough. After three bottles I began to gain weight, and all symptoms of the cold and flu disappeared. I never knew a medicine so effective."

Mrs. Emma Seymour of 214 James St., Akron, Ohio.

World's Tonic is not a specific for colds, but it broke up that cold in the same way it does for many ills. It helped clear away the impurities in the blood, enabled this blood to kill off the germs, and supplied what the system needed to gain strength. Because it is so helpful in chronic catarrh, in this case it was equally effective in acute catarrh.

An illness hangs on because of weakness. Correct that weakness with World's Tonic, and your strength will help greatly to overcome the trouble. World's Tonic is sold by Central Drug Store, and other good druggists. (A-139).

STOCK TRENDS INDEFINITE IN SLOW EXCHANGE

Foreign Affairs Factor In Speculative Restraint; Ticker Tape Dozes.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks tip-toed over a narrow price range in today's market.

With the ticker tape dozing frequently, definite trends were lacking. Near the second hour gains of small fractions were slightly in the majority.

Little aid was received from bonds where minor declines were plentiful. Commodities were uneven. Securities at London tended lower while the Paris bourse registered upturns.

Traders apparently continued to fiddle with inflationary ideas but without any great buying zest. Foreign affairs held much boardroom attention and were thought to have been a factor in speculative restraint.

Brokerage quarters, citing the pent-up needs of the principal utility companies for metals in plant expansion, voiced the belief buying of steel, copper and other necessities would be stepped up following announcement of second quarter steel prices.

Regarding the recent sharp increase in commercial failures over the corresponding 1937 period, analysts pointed out the latest figures were hardly as serious as they seemed in view of the fact that, at this time a year ago, insolvencies were exceptionally low.

SAYS WORST OF SMALLPOX OVER

Au, South Diamond road, (third to be taken ill in her family—her two school children have been confined for the past week); Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Varner, Epworth, R. D. 2, Mansfield; Richard Long, 17, Martha avenue, East Mansfield, and Ellwood Kinley, 17, of South Diamond road, both students at Madison township high school; and Lidia McCartney, 15, of Barnes avenue, a student at Hedges school.

Health authorities reported that they had released Robert Wilkins, of Lincoln Heights, a student at Madison township high school, from quarantine yesterday.

Dr. Finley Van Orsall, chief of the communicable disease division of the state health department and Dr. P. L. Harris, also of the state department, who have been here since last Saturday aiding in vaccination work, returned to Columbus yesterday.

Dr. Rehder said that the offices of the health department in the city building will be open Saturday from 1 p. m. until 5 p. m. for the purpose of re-vaccinating those persons whose vaccination was not successful. He urged those whose vaccination showed no signs of "taking" after ten days, to return to their physician and be re-vaccinated.

Open Way For Navy Building Race as Reply to Japan's Armament Secrecy.

and battleships, the holiday in heavy cruiser construction, limitations on the size of aircraft carriers and on destroyers and submarines—all will be tossed into the scrapheap.

Under the 1936 treaty a 35,000 ton upward limit was placed on battleships and an 8,000 ton, six-inch gun limit placed on business.

Japan already has gone far beyond the 5-5-3 ratio by rapid building and is reported to have four 46,000-ton battleships, armed with 18 inch guns, under construction or projected.

It was these reports, together with the complete secrecy with which Japan has enshrouded her naval program since she walked out of the London conference, which impelled the United States, Britain and France to demand a showdown with Japan.

The Tokyo government refused to deny the reports.

The private agreement between the three powers is expected to be followed shortly by formal announcement by Great Britain of the necessity, in view of Japan's attitude, of invoking the "escape" clause in the 1936 treaty.

The clause provides that should a non-signatory be found to be exceeding the limitations of the treaty a signatory, upon notifying the other signatories of such intention, can exceed these limits.

Great Britain will take the formal step, it was learned, as she is the reporitory of the treaty.

The action is justified by the United States, Britain and France on the grounds of national security.

CARPENTER P.T.A. SHIFTS MEETING

Sessions To Be Held Second Tuesday Night Of Each Month.

Meetings of the Carpenter school Parent-Teacher association will be held the second Tuesday night of the month instead of the third Tuesday, beginning March 8, J. R. Drumm, president of the organization, announced today. The change was voted at a meeting of the organization Tuesday night.

Due to the smallpox outbreak, the organization's executive board cancelled the carnival which was to have been held Feb. 25 at the school building.

Chief of Police Meade K. Bates addressed the meeting. He asserted that juvenile crimes have been on the decrease in Mansfield in recent months.

"The first duty of a police department is to prevent crime and one way of preventing juvenile crime is to eliminate the places where children can get into trouble," he said.

FUNDS FOR GIRL SCOUTS SOUGHT

New Council Asks Community Fund to Admit Movement as Participating Agency.

The Girl Scout movement in Mansfield gathered new impetus today as the recently organized Girl Scout council made application to the Community Fund to be admitted as a participating agency.

A tentative set-up for a six-month program, with a trained director was outlined calling for a minimum of $6,000 under which the organization could function. A headquarters office would be established for the six-month period each year.

Mrs. Roger Black is temporary chairman. Serving with her on the council are Mrs. C. H. Henkel, Mrs. Howard Keene, Mrs. E. W. Loughridge, Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Marshall Moore, Mrs. E. M. Olin, Mrs. R. M. Gage, Mrs. J. C. Gorman, Mrs William Layton, Mrs. John W. Graham, Mrs. Charles G. Brown, Miss Katharine Hartman, Mrs. G. V. Smith, Mrs. Tom Price, Dr. R. D. Campbell, Dr. K. E. Buhr and Rev. E. G. Corwin.

At the present time there are 148 Girl Scouts in Mansfield, but there are frequent requests to form new troops, Mrs. Black said, and this will be done as soon as financial aid can be obtained.

INCOME TAX NUTSHELL

NO. 21

Deduction For Interest.

Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1937 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income in determining net income. Such items include interest on borrowed money to defray personal expenses, and on money borrowed for the purchase of real or personal property. If a person owes money on a lien or mortgage note on his home, the amount of the interest may be deducted. Indebtedness, however, need not be evidenced by lien, judgment, or mortgage to make the interest on it deductible. Frequently indebtedness is evidenced only by a note.

Interest paid on indebtedness incurred in the purchase of obligations (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer), the interest upon which is wholly exempt from Federal income tax, is not deductible. Interest paid on loans on life insurance policies is deductible provided the amount of the loan is not used for the purposes previously referred to in this paragraph.

Interest paid on behalf of a friend or relative where there is no legal obligation on the part of the payor is not deductible. In such cases the amount is the same as a gift.

As interest paid is deductible, so interest received is taxable. All such amounts, including interest received on bank and savings deposits, must be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income.

Odd Buried from 'Dream Home'

From this white-posted brick "mansion" on a quiet street in Gallipolis, Oscar Odd McIntyre, who wrote the first Broadway column and who at his death Monday had 15,000,000 readers, was buried this afternoon His body was brought to the "dream house" he had never lived in and laid in state there while friends and old neighbors paid their last respects. From "Gatewood," McIntyre's "dream home," to which he planned to retire, his body was taken to a little cemetery on a knoll high above the Ohio river, and there laid to rest.

1,400 VOTERS HELD INELIGIBLE

Notified They Will Have to Register Again For Failing to Vote In Last 2 Years.

About 1,400 Mansfielders who have not voted for the past two years had been ruled ineligible to vote today by the county board of elections in accordance with a state law.

Their eligibility will be renewed, however, when they re-register at the board of elections office in the basement of the courthouse, Deputy Clerk Walter Underwood said.

Notices will be mailed to the persons on the ineligible list, Underwood said, to give them plenty of time to register before the primary in August.

A number of the persons whose names were placed in the transfer files have moved from the city.

The present city registration list shows approximately 19,000 persons eligible to cast their votes in Mansfield.

280 MORE OHIO 1-ROOM SCHOOL BUILDINGS PASS

Less Than 2,000 Remain In State as Consolidated Districts Increase.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The year 1937 relegated 280 more little one-room school houses into the realm of forgotten things, reducing the total remaining time-worn educational institutions to 1,889.

When the Cox school law was passed in 1914, providing for enlargement of local school districts, there were 9,489 one-room school buildings in Ohio.

"As the districts increased in size, the number of one-room schools decreased," said Dr. David Sutton, state school finance chief.

14 Counties Have None.

"Today there are 14 Ohio counties which have no one-room school houses. One-room schools are more costly than the modern educational institutions because of the small enrollment in the majority of them," Dr Sutton said.

The finance chief also pointed out that students in the old-time buildings do not receive the greatest educational advantages because the teacher, who must teach many grades, is unable to devote sufficient time to students.

Adams and Darke counties have the most one-room buildings, Dr Sutton said, and in many instances there are less than 10 students enrolled One school in Adams county has six, and one in Darke has only seven pupils.

"One-room schools probably never will disappear entirely because of racial, religious and geographical reasons." Dr Sutton said.

"A geographical example is found on an island in Lake Erie where residents are more or less isolated, while in other sections both natives and foreigners prefer to have their children educated separately Religion, in some sections of the state, also makes one-room schools necessary."

But, generally, the march of progress has pushed aside the school which educated today's grandparents, and has substituted an age of specialization and buildings adapted to meet specialized needs.

TAKE UP RELIEF, ROAD PROBLEMS

They Will Be Major Topics at Annual Meeting of County, Township Heads Feb. 24.

Road maintenance and the relief problem are expected to be the major topics for discussion when Richland county officials and township trustees and clerks convene Thursday, Feb. 24, in Mansfield for the 15th annual county road meeting.

The session, arranged by County Engineer Howard C. Sword, will be held at the First M. E church. The meeting will open at 10 a. m. and will include a luncheon and an afternoon session.

Scheduled for brief talks are C. L Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners; J. R. Thomas, Hayesville, state president of township trustees; Norman L Wolfe, county auditor; Glenn W. Marriott, county prosecutor, and Ralph C. Lutz, state representative.

The Richland Trustees and Clerks association will elect officers and conduct a round-table discussion

HEAR BISHOP

BUCYRUS—Delegations from all sections of the county heard an address by Bishop Robert H. Jones of the Covington area at First Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday night Rev. H. W. Peterson, Mansfield, was also a speaker.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEVADA CITY, Calif—(AP)—After all these years, geologists have discovered that Nature, too, watered her stocks—at least her gold stocks.

For hot water, says Dr. W. D. Johnston, jr., of the U. S. geological survey, was the source, of the gold-bearing quartz veins.

The veins lie between faces of the rocks where millions of years ago they were fractured. Some of these fractures are a few inches wide at some points, 40 feet at others.

Their slope, and the way they must have been filled, says Dr Johnston, indicates that rising, hot waters brought up the quartz, the gold and the other minerals now forming the veins This idea is at variance with a general belief of geologists that quartz veins and their gold were produced on the spot by reactions going on within the rocks.

Dr Johnston tramped through many miles of underground workings to obtain evidence for the hot-water theory of the origin of gold veins. His idea is that the water did not make the gold, but carried the particles.

ADMIT ARSON

Trio Pleads Guilty to Arson During Box Plant Strike.

DALLAS, Ore. — (AP) — Three men have pleaded guilty in circuit court to arson charges which grew out of a fire last November that destroyed a picketed box plant and spread to a lumber yard, causing $130,000 damage.

The men were Cecil Moore, John Newlands and Ernest Carson. Sentences were withheld.

A. N. Banks, business agent for the A F. of L. Teamsters Union at Salem, also charged with arson in connection with the same fire, did not enter a plea pending a conference with his attorney.

Also indicted was Al Rosser, chieftain of the Portland Teamsters Union and a lieutenant of Dave Beck, Seattle teamster organizer for 10 western states. Rosser is held in jail here under $100,000 bond.

WOMEN JURORS CAUSE MIX-UP

One Goes to Library to Check Upon Testimony, Judge Hears.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— This city doesn't seem to be able to use an all-woman jury.

The second such jury to be tried here went to public library to study up on injuries of the type being conbsidered by the jury in a personal injury case. Judge Frederick P. Walther declared a mistrial. The other all-woman jury was dismissed when it reported "hopeless disagreement" in Judge Samuel H. Silbert's court 18 months ago.

To Get the Best Cough Remedy, Mix It at Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving you double-quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

EBB FORECAST IN FARM CASH LATER IN YEAR

Little Change Expected In First Half, However, Say U. S. Economists.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Cash farm income during the first six months of this year probably will be little changed from the first half of 1937, according to Department of Agriculture economists.

Total income for the year, however, probably will be "somewhat lower" than in 1937, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A Wallace said. Cash income in 1937 was estimated at $8,500,000,000, highest since 1929

Economists expect increased marketing of farm produce during the next few months to force prices from 10 to 20 per cent lower than was received by farmers in the first half of last year.

The greatest part of a $580,000,000 increase in cash income last year over 1936 chiefly was from wheat, tobacco and the more important fruit crops, the department said.

From October through November, 1937, there were sharp declines in prices of farm commodities, and a morethan-seasonal decrease in marketings of tobacco and meat animals. Reductions were marked as to hogs, cattle, wool, potatoes, apples and sugar beets

More Livestock Sales.

Full marketings of livestock were smaller than usual because farmers were keeping larger numbers for breeding, due to cheap feed and relatively high meat prices The number of hogs, cattle and lambs reaching market this spring is expected to be considerably larger than a year ago

Corn, wheat, cotton and oats held on farms Jan 1 was larger than usual. This large carry-over is expected to result in larger marketings this spring. Thousands of head of cattle and lambs usually shipped from western ranges to market have been going to corn belt farms for fattening

Sales of poultry products may be smaller than a year ago, but marketing of dairy products may be slightly larger, the department said. Meat animals, poultry and dairy products make up about 60 per cent of the total cash farm income

Farmers last year received $3,840,000,000 from the sale of 78 principal crops, compared with $3,462,000,000 in 1936.

Ted and His High Hat Coming

TED LEWIS

TED LEWIS BRINGS TROUPE OF 35 TO MADISON NEXT TUESDAY

Ted Lewis, the "high hatted tragedian of jazz," who has made friends of his audiences up and down the land for many years, comes to Mansfield next Tuesday, bringing his troupe of 35 entertainers to the Madison theater for four performances It is the same show that is now playing in other Ohio cities

The stage show will be combined with a picture program

With his battered silk topper and his cheery "Is everybody happy?", Lewis will head the show with his well known bag of merry tunes and tricks There are certain songs so definitely associated with Lewis that he seldom makes an appearance that he isn't asked to sing one or more of them His "When My Baby Smiles At Me" is as closely associated with him as was "Casey at The Bat" with the late DeWolf Hopper

Among the songs that he has made famous in past years are "Me and My Shadow," "Peanuts" "Three O'clock In The Morning" and "Just Around The Corner."

The Lewis rhythm swing band organized for his Broadway show, is on tour with him Charlie "Snowball" Whittier is a featured performer with Lewis this season

END NEAR FOR DEATH CROSSING

State Maps Plan to Eliminate U. S. Route 20 Hazard With $400,000 Program.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The state highway department drafted plans today for eliminating what some persons rate as the most dangerous highway intersection in Ohio

The contemplated project, estimated to cost at least $400,000, would separate the heavily traveled U S route 20 from state route 4. The roads intersect one and one-half miles east of Bellevue and 12 miles south of Sandusky.

At the same time the highway department would eliminate—all in the one project—a grade crossing in which state route 4 crosses the New York Central, the Wheeling and Lake Erie and the Lake Shore Electric railroad tracks

The railroad crossing, only a few hundred feet from the highway intersection, also is considered a big hazard to motorists.

The project, embracing concrete and steel overhead bridges and about 600 feet of fill, would elevate route 4 traffic above that of U. S. 20.

Traffic would travel from one highway to another by means of a "clover leaf" system of connecting strips of concrete. By this system an automobile could enter the other highway always on the right side of the road and traveling in the same direction as traffic

Highway Director John Jaster, jr., said the railroads had consented to the grade separation, and that his department was awaiting only an allocation of federal aid funds before proceeding further.

THEATER

PARAMOUNT went to one of the greatest of all American short story writers for the plot of Bing Crosby's next picture, though how the title of "Dr. Rhythm" ever came out of O. Henry's story "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon," is yet to be explained. But the cast sounds like good entertainment. Beatrice Lillie plays Mrs. Dodge-Blogett and wears more funny hats than you'll see at a spring style show. Andy Devine of the gravel voice, plays Policeman O'Roon, while Rufe "Rubberface" Davis is the keeper of the zoo. Mary Carlisle, who has been the romantic interest in Crosby pictures several times, does service again. Liberties have been taken with the O'Henry story, but all in the interests of good clean fun.

Hopy in Love.

Hopalong Cassidy meets his match in "Partners of the Plains," and it isn't a faster shooting, harder riding plainsman, but an English girl who lassos and throws the red blooded cowboy, branding him for her own. In the latest Hopalong Cassidy picture, which the Madison shows Friday and Saturday, the popular Clarence Mulford hero falls in love at last, when the owner of the ranch on which he works stops off on her way from London to California. Hopy's enemies believe it a smart move to strike at Hopy through the girl, and as a result there are stirring encounters, a plot to dynamite the dam and a roaring forest fire. William Boyd, long identified with the Hopy roles, has the support of Gwen Caze, a newcomer in pictures, his two partners, Russell Hayden and Harvey Clark.

Turns to Drama.

Joan Bennett plays a dramatic role in "I Met My Love Again," getting away from the light romantic comedies she has been playing for several years. The picture was made before Miss Bennett went on her stage venture in "Stage Door." She plays an impetuous, romantic New England girl who comes a cropper in her first marriage, and who returns to her first love after her marriage collapses. There is a dramatic climax when she decides to settle a question between herself and another girl over the man they both love, by going on a wild ride with only the two girls in the car, presumably riding to their death. Henry Fonda, Dame May Whitty and Alan Marshall are in this Ohio theater attraction.

Remember Them?

In "Ten Laps To Go", the older picture fan will find the names of players who were among their favorites a number of years ago. There is Rex Lease, Muriel Evans, Duncan Renaldo (who lost his place in pictures through his ill-fated trip to Africa on the "Trader Horn" location"); Charles DeLaney, old time character player, Tom Moore, once a leading man who hasn't been in pictures lately; Marie Prevost, the one time lovely who lost out because of poundage but whose death last year saddened Hollywood; and Yakima Canutt, once a cowboy star. The story centers around the dirt track racing game with romance at the controls. The second film is at the Majestic; the Western, "Cattle Raider" with Charles Starrett.

Jane Goes West.

Jane Withers, who is scoring a hit on her personal appearance tour, goes West in her own way in her picture "Wild and Woolly," which the Ritz offers tomorrow and Saturday. Jane is sustained in her pranks and antics this time by a troupe of fun makers, including Walter Brennan, "Alfalfa" of Our Gang comedies and Jackie Searl, who as a movie "brat" in his day could have given Miss Withers something to think about. The child star introduces some new tricks which would bring the average youngster into juvenile court. The Ritz bill is largely Western for the other feature is Tom Tyler in "The Phantom of The Range."

Razzing Costly

Ever since 1928 John Curry, 49, a barber, has made his Akron, O., barber shop windows a "forum for political protest" without anything happening. But Curry recently razzed Ohio's governor, Martin L. Davey. Now Barber Curry has been haled before the state board of barber examiners to show why his license shouldn't be revoked. Curry said he was charged with using a dirty towel and with failing to use sanitary solutions, all of which, he declared, is untrue.

KILLS 'BEST FRIEND'

STEUBENVILLE —(AP)— Police reported today that Stephen Lechoop, 45, pawn shop proprietor, told them he shot his his "best friend," Walter Usluk, 47, to death when his hand accidentally struck a case while he was showing a pistol to a customer.

GOLD IN HAWAII?

Complete Secrecy Surrounds 'Find' of Precious Ore.

HONOLULU — (UP)—Hawaii is enjoying all of the thrills of a gold rush with the exception of the actual rush itself.

The only reason why the rush has not yet occurred is that complete secrecy has been maintained as to the whereabouts of the announced discovery of gold.

Gold-bearing ore assaying about $1,000 a ton is reported to have been discovered near here by David Walden, a recent arrival from Cambridge, Mass.

Walden has so far refused to divulge any information relative to the whereabouts of his announced find.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1938.

One trouble seems to be that there are not enough kinds of employment that don't involve work.

Cheerful thought—a farmer can still be a good farmer, even if he doesn't understand the new agriculture bill.

Note is made of the incident of a book being returned to the Cleveland public library 49 years after it was borrowed—so don't be discouraged.

Taxpayers Supply the Money.

ENOUGH has already been revealed by the Ohio senate's graft investigation committee to arouse every taxpayer to realization of the importance of carrying this probe through to completion—so that all of the facts may become known and steps taken to better safeguard public money against ignorant or criminal waste.

With the approach of February 28, and intended adjournment of the legislature on that date, some means should surely be found to provide the money and allow the time necessary to carry the investigation to completion.

Now that the legal rights of the senate committee to summon witnesses and compel testimony has been upheld in a court action, it would be entirely unfair to all parties concerned to stop the investigation either by withholding funds or by ending the committee's powers through adjournment.

However lightly the honesty of professional politicians may be regarded by some people, it cannot be escaped that a great majority of the voters of a state feel that they can depend on the integrity of men whom they have chosen to high positions and believe that they can look to these men to make sure that public money is carefully handled, wisely spent, and that a dollar in value is returned for each dollar expended—rather than that public money should be wastefully dealt out through unscrupulous politicians to favored contributors to a party machine or crooked partisan beneficiaries of an iniquitous system.

Unless there can be assurance of dependable honesty in the conduct of public business there is little justification for expecting it anywhere, as the people of a state can scarcely be expected to have developed any higher standards of conduct than they see exemplified by men who have been chosen to positions of high responsibility in the public service.

Ohio taxpayers have a right to know what is being done with their money—in every department of state government—and they should demand that this information be given to them, in full, through a full and fair investigation.

Foreign Unemployment.

THE present business relapse, though by no means world-wide, seems to be reflected in various other countries, particularly Great Britain. The latest figures show that unemployment in that country, from last summer to the middle of February, increased about 500,000. From December 13 to January 17 the rise was 162,000. The total unemployment there stood at 1,827,000 on the latter date, and the trend indicates that it may be about 1,900,000 now.

That is getting close to 2,000,000, the high mark of unemployment in recent years. As British population is about one-third of ours, the present unemployment there seems equivalent to 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 here. Recent estimates for our own country have been 10,000,000 or more.

Evidently some of the causes operating to produce business stagnation in the United States are also operating in England. The causes here are doubtless political to some extent, but there seem to be common economic causes also at work. They show in the democratic countries that have a comparatively free economy, though largely concealed in countries like Germany and Russia, whose business systems are controlled by dictators.

To Guard Against Shoddy Houses.

THE English Master Builders association has decided that it is time to protect sound building and curtail shoddy building. There has been a good deal of the latter since the World war. Beginning in Birmingham, the home of hall-marked gold and silver products, the association is going to hall-mark well-built houses.

The plan provides for thorough inspection of a house during its construction and after its completion. A builder who has met all the requirements of good materials and good workmanship will then be given a certificate and permitted to insert in a prominent position an air-brick of special design as a hall-mark of excellence.

This plan assures the builder recognition of the quality of his house. It tells the buyer what he is getting. It is hoped that it will make things so difficult for the jerry-builder that he will mend his ways and improve his houses.

There has already been a start along this line in some cities of the United States. The "certified" house not only meets the local building code requirements but possesses guaranteed quality beyond literal, legal specifications.

Preparation For Argument.

FIERCE arguments about economic and governmental problems are sometimes interesting but seldom conclusive. They hold the gallery but "don't get anywhere." Perhaps that is because they don't start anywhere.

In such matters, particularly, there is need of Voltaire's old rule: "Gentlemen, let us define our terms." What do the disputants mean by "capitalism", "socialism", "communism", "democracy", "the American system", and all the other isms and shibboleths poured forth. If they will define such words clearly, then the discussion may proceed more intelligently and logically.

Yet logical discussion is seldom possible even when the meaning of words is clarified. For then it is necessary to state our premises and proceed step by step to our conclusions, according to rules established thousands of years ago. And we often find, if we analyze the argument, that the debaters who talk most about "logic" seem to know least about it.

Word comes that there is a trend toward raspberry hues in suitings for men—which should be quite the berries.

Reno now reports more marriages than divorces—a turning of the untied.

Hagood Asks Intended Use of Larger Navy

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood cannot very well be disciplined for telling the house of representatives' naval affairs committee, as he did recently, that (in his opinion) America's "national defense is being made the football of politics."

The general practically is punishment proof.

In effect, he is in the position of an individual who already has been beheaded and who then does something else that the executioner would like to behead him for; the same person's head can't be amputated more than once in succession.

PREVIOUS PUNISHMENT

Hagood is the identical general who, as a witness before an earlier congressional committee, referred to WPA checks as "stage money."

For having done so he was militarily suspended, which caused quite a scandal, on the ground that it was unfair to penalize an army officer for testifying conscientiously, according to his lights, under a subpoena which he was bound by law to recognize.

Indeed, the row was such that he presently was reinstated.

However, there are "more ways of killing a cat than choking it with cream." Though reinstated, the general was transferred (amounting to demotion). Next he was retired ahead of his time.

NO "RETALIATION"

Of course these readjustments may have been merely a series of coincidences

Nevertheless, short of killing him literally, or at least cutting him off the retired list's payroll, there is not much more that superior authority can do in retaliation for his latest remarks before the representatives' naval affairs committee.

And it would not look well to be quite that Nazi-istic.

WHERE TO BE USED?

Gen. Hagood found no especial fault with the pending $800,000,000 navy building program.

He agreed that, perhaps, an $800,000,000 American navy is needed.

What he asked was:

WHY is it needed, and HOW is it going to be used?

We all know that the international outlook is bilious. Possibly that answers the question. "Why?"

But "How?"

Are we creating strength to keep us neutral? Or are we creating it to enable us to recommend ourselves as a formidable ally to other powers that we may chance to consider in the right? —when the mix-up does come.

* * *

UP TO CONGRESS?

Gen. Hagood does not want too leave this issue to the president to decide.

It is a constitutional principle that the president cannot DECLARE war; the declaration must be congressional. Still, it is a commonplace that presidential policy generally is such that when the time comes, congress has no choice.

Basically, constitutionally, it is up to congress.

"Well, then," urges Gen. Hagood, "let congress assert itself before the last minute."

"Let the president tell congress what his aims are," demands Senator Hiram W. Johnson.

"No!" answers Gen. Hagood, in effect. "Let congress tell the president what he can do."

A Country Man's Column.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(Note—Said scads of fans, "we could write columns, maybe better than yours, if we had the chance." So we gave them a chance to make this unique clearing house for American thought and feeling. Here's one of the results — released to 50,000,000 readers. Tell us what you think of it.)

* * *

"IF ONLY"—

How often do YOU say that?

If only you had the Other Fellow's breaks . . . if only you had the other woman's Looks or Luck . . . then you'd show 'em! Yet all the while you could do or be practically anything you wish if you'd drop your own envy and fear and realize that you have the power to rise above any circumstance.

An old truth—but new to each man who discovers it. This time it's seventy-year-old Parks Cousins of Fayetteville, Georgia, who's demonstrating it.

CAN A COUNTRY MAN BE A COLUMNIST?

Parks doesn't think he can—

"Dear Miss Elsie—

"I am interested in your invitation to us to 'turn columnist,' but I do not think a country man can be a columnist in any way you fix it. A person, to be a columnist, must live in town, travel, see people, know something.

"Suppose you were to turn your column over to me one time. What would your readers think if they read something like this:

"Bill Jones killed hogs last week . . . Brother So-and-so lost a fine mule . . . Miss So-and-so gave a sewing party . . . Mrs. So-and-so is going to have a quilting party next Thursday . . . The boys caught a big possum up on Sandy Creek last night . . . Old Tige treed him.

"What would your readers think of such a mess as that? They might have one good laugh and it would be all over. So you see it is conditions that qualify us for anything.

"Speaking of town and country, I'll tell you how it is. Country life is all right in the summer and spring but you had better stay near brick houses in the winter. It is cold and lonesome some places in the country in winter time. I know! You take a dark night—it's raining and freezing—no neighbors near—all the protection you have is an old broken down shot gun and your Bible. You'll be glad then to see the sun rise and smoke come out of some neighbor's chimney.

"Of course, some in cities have hard times, but they never have those long lonesome nights some have in the country."

PARKS COUSINS,
Fayetteville, Ga.

AND so you think, Parks, that folks would laugh if they read such a column? Then let me hand you a surprise. That letter with its homey details and simple wording will bring the tears into many an eye, a homesick choke into many a throat. To you—dazed by the imagined wonder-of great cities—there seems little glamour in that account of Old Tige treeing a 'possum, or Mrs. So-and-so having a quilting party, or the smoke rising from a neighbor's chimney. But to a tired city man or woman clutching a subway strap . . . battling a way through the uproar and confusion, the filth and greed of city life . . . those words are a glimpse of heaven!

IT ISN'T WHERE YOU LIVE, PARKS, OR EVEN WHAT HAPPENS TO YOU, THAT COUNTS . . . IT'S THE WAY YOU SEE IT. You've given us more than hogs and possums in those words . . . you've given us the deep things of life that call to every heart . . . the gentle service of a quilting bee . . . the gay adventure of dark woods and barking dogs . . . the joy of friendly sounds and smells after a long dark night.

And that's great column writing, Parks—though you never suspected it, did you? An all-around columnist writes anywhere, everywhere, but best of all in the country . . . for in the country he comes closest to the call of the earth and the hunger of the human heart.

And here's another secret. I invited you all to write a column for that very reason—that each of you might stand in the Other Fellow's shoes and see your own life from the Other Fellow's angle. You didn't think your life would appeal to the city man . . . and you also think that his life is much softer than yours.

Mistaken again, pal. There's no loneliness in all the earth like the loneliness of city nights—there's no dullness on earth like the boredom of city grind.

Can you stand one last surprise, Parks? Then it's this. I'm a country woman myself. Yes, I go into cities sometimes. But for months at a time I never leave my cabin and tall trees. And right now I'm writing in overalls and boots. For I've been riding fence line—just as you may be doing today. And last week we butchered our big hog. And there's hardly a day that I don't stir up a mess of corn bread, or patch someone's pants between editorials. Or ever a dawn that I don't grin to the smell of coffee, wood smoke, fried pork and country gravy!

So you never can tell—can you?

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

PRAY FOR PEACE: He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.—Psalms 46:9.

Keeping Step

More Relief and Higher Taxes.

—By LESLIE EICHEL

Anybody who believes that relief expenditures will decrease or that income tax will not be increased (next year for this year) does not read the signs. Unemployment now numbers more than at any time since early 1933 (there are more workers available due to more coming of age). And international business has just begun to feel the worst of the blow. (Trade in England has been declining rapidly for a month or more—the depression is world wide.) As for steel, even with the price reduced, production for 1938 is estimated at merely slightly more than half of 1937.

Yet, the worst seems to have passed. But we have not yet paid for the worst.

England's case is being cited to inflationists by non-inflationists. There, the government is spending 7½ billion dollars on armament—and prices break away, and unemployment rises.

FARM PRICES

The new U. S. farm bill may sustain farm prices internally, through artificial means, but it may be costly to American trade. In fact, it is likely to prove most costly to farmers. By inflating prices of U. S. agricultural products above world markets, the United States is depriving the farmers of those markets.

In spite of the reciprocal treaties, it is becoming more and more difficult for other peoples to do business with the United States—because of inflated prices here, and our still-too-high tariff barriers. Another nation will not pay us more for farm products if at the same time it is barred from sending its manufactured goods here through high tariff duties. Trade is not carried on with money in exchange for goods, it must be remembered. Trade is what its name implies—exchange of goods for goods, with money merely the token of exchange.

PRESIDENT IS THE HEAD

"I commend very highly your column—'The president of the United States, it seems to have been forgotten, is responsible to the people of the United States, to the electorate, not to a congressional minority'," writes D. J. Moran, attorney, of Hammond, Ind. He adds:

"You are exactly right. The constitution makes the president the general manager of the government . . .

"From the very beginning the congress sought to and did, unlawfully, curtail the executive's powers granted by the constitution . . . Then along comes the United States supreme court and curtails the constitutional powers of the congress and the whirly-gig goes round and round.

"Truly, the English statesman who recently said, 'You Americans are a queer people, you have nine kings and we have only one,' was right."

ANOTHER LETTER

And here's another letter — regarding the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. schism—by Sidney Edelberg of New York City.

"It was quite disheartening to read in your column that you could see only the virtual impossibility of the C. I. O. getting together with the A. F. of L., at any time.

"Somehow I have always felt that the pressure from the rank and file of labor would force the stubborn bureaucratic leaders into line, within a year or so.

"Inasmuch as I agree with you fully that modern unionists can never step backward to accept outmoded forms, I believe that it is mainly up to the members of the craft unions to make their A. F. of L. leaders see the light. Few rank and fillers need be told how important such a step would be especially during the current recession. The force of such solidarity would prevent thousands from losing their jobs. It would keep labor's morale at its present high plane and it would prevent a lowering of wage scales.

"Most important, I believe, would be a groundwork for gains for labor through legislative means, through the American Labor party. It may be wishful thinking, but every interested laborite wants to see labor united before the next national election. In New York and Pennsylvania both rank and files should be united (at least politically) in state elections."

Discusses Edwards Lecture.

Editor News-Journal:

Considering the present status of Great Britain in world affairs, the address of Alfred Edwards, "Organizing the World for Peace," was highly appropriate from the British standpoint—also revealing. It would be well for the people of America to pay particular attention at the present time to British lecturers who profess pacifism as their theme.

To the Englishman, in periods when war is remote, the American is a vulgar materialist whose attempts at aping British culture provide high comedy. At the present time, however, war is practically inevitable as far as Great Britain is concerned, hence the discovery on the part of Mr. Edwards of a common bond between Great Britain and America—we are "English speaking peoples." Saviors again of peace, liberty and democracy, much as we were under the barrage of British propaganda that preceded our entrance into the last war.

During the question period that followed Mr. Edwards' lecture, this might have been asked: Does the mystic fol-de-rol of brotherhood and common cause that springs from the fact that we, Great Britain and America, are "English speaking peoples," carry a genuine conviction that our union may maintain peace, or is it for the more practical purpose of utilizing the tonnage of the American navy to protect the Bank of England in the Orient? This would be an ideal arrangement. The British navy would be left free to barge around the North Sea taking pot shots at the small craft that may put forth from Herr Rosenberg's Middle Empire. The British navy would be left free to cruise the Mediterranean, routing the "boy scout" strength of Italy.

It is a foregone conclusion that America will again undergo every phase of British propaganda that caused us to "Make the World Safe for Democracy" in 1917. G. K. Chesterton, writing for his own magazine, made the following comments which may be considered pertinent to the Edwards lecture: "—we have got them to talk of ourselves as a 'democracy'—which is prodigious."

"We are the only people of the world who use the same printed word and largely the same spoken word as the Americans. Vastly different as we are from Americans, we have in common with them the moral ideas proceeding from the men who dominated the English in the 17th century. We know what will move American indignation and enthusiasm even when it does not move our own."

"American opinion is inflammable, and just as we got up the cry 'to Hell with the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs' so we might get a slogan for the Pacific. We are about half way to our goal. Shall we be able to reach it? As things now stand, our chances are—to put it in American—about fifty-fifty."

If we are ever to prove ourselves above the intellectual level of malleable moronity to which we have been consigned by the British, we should remain on the lookout for the amiable Mr. Edwardses who attempt to spread the boundaries of the British Empire to include, as war nears, "English speaking peoples."

Odd Is Gone

—AN APPRECIATION

Today, as the body of O. O. McIntyre is laid to rest amid the scenes of his young manhood in his beloved Gallipolis, Ohio, his friends will be brought to even better understanding of his fineness by reading the following appreciation, written by Charles B. Driscoll, editor of McNaught Syndicate, long-time friend of McIntyre and author of a biography of the columnist that is soon to appear in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

OSCAR ODD McINTYRE has been my friend for more than thirteen years. I have edited every line of copy he has written for the newspapers in all that time, have been in touch with him and with his thoughts and actions every day. There was between us that rare kind of friendship that he loved to call camaraderie.

Shortly after midnight a member of the household called me at my home in Yonkers to say that Odd had fallen asleep at midnight and that no one outside the apartment had been told as yet. I was asleep when the telephone rang, and my only answer to the sudden disaster was, "I don't know what to say."

NOW, hours, sleepless hours later, I still do not know what to say.

Here was a man I loved. The world loved him because of his personality as displayed in his writings. I loved him well because I knew him so well. Of all the writing men and women whose work I have handled and edited, this man was the one who showed through the printed word as he really was.

Yes, he was that simple, unaffected, noble soul whom you know in "New York Day By Day" and in the magazine articles that were so popular with the millions.

I have just finished his biography. I will always remember his words and his expression on the day when I told him that I intended to write a book about him.

I was riding with him and Mrs. McIntyre in their car. Odd had asked me if I would like to have a lift home, and we were riding along Riverside Drive, near Grant's tomb, when I said, addressing Mrs. McIntyre rather than Odd, because I knew he would be embarrassed: "I'm going to write a book about Odd; a real, serious book. It will be a biography, but more than that, it will be a critical survey of his work, with the object of placing Odd where he belongs among American writers.

ODD was unable to speak for minutes. He changed color several times, smiled, laughed nervously, and, at length, said, "Well, that's an awful nice thought, Charlie. I can't imagine that anybody would want to write about me, but if anybody should, I'd want it to be you."

The rest of the way home was a most pleasant ride. Odd was as pleased as a child with a new hoop.

Ever since, while the book has been going through its birthpangs, Odd has been pleased in that same, naive, childish way. A few days ago he read the announcement in Cosmopolitan about the first installment of the biography in the April number. He was as happy as if his name had appeared in print for the first time.

I CAN only go on like this, telling stories of him, talking fast, and looking out the window.

A man does not have two friends like that in a lifetime.

My friend has gone. I am desolate, and I cannot even see the typewriter. It is an awful thing to be unable to cry like a woman.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

—By O. O. McINTYRE

MANHATTAN'S oldest saloon is Billy's at 56th street and First avenue. It remains as it was when the original owner tapped the first keg more than 50 years ago. His son and grandson are now in charge and live upstairs, just as he did.

Billy's is strictly a neighborhood place. Folk bring buckets and pitchers to rush the growler as in the long ago. Over the side door is the familiar "Family Entrance." Gas lights flicker and there's a mammoth old brass-hinged ice box. Over in a corner shirt-sleeved regulars play seven up.

Karl Kitchen discovered Billy's and as a result of his write-up a lot of the Sutton Place boys with police dogs and berets began dropping in just for heck of it. But Billy's is not susceptible to the flattery of hoity-toity trade. There is an impression it prefers catering to its own.

The Phil Stongs, novelists, go there, but not as celebrities. So do Watterson Rothacker and others whose identities mean nothing to the management. The familiar maltese naps before the huge base-burner and there is the bandy-legged "boy" of all work, whose age is indeterminable.

Renee Carroll continues in the role of queen of the hat-check girls, a sobriquet Broadway bestowed a dozen years ago. Red haired, vivacious, born Shapiro, she has done right well by herself as concessionaire as Sardi's, which has a mixture of theatrical and press agent clientele. In exchange for gay banter and that cherished accolade—not passing out redeeming checks to the right people—she probably gets as steady a flow of tips as anyone. First and foremost of the professional hat checkers were the three Susskind brothers, alert youths who began hat-checking at the Astor. They finally took over the privileges and extended them to almost every hotel and restaurant in the city. For a time each was rated a millionaire.

Note on high art: Nothing looks so flat and forlorn as a souffle that doesn't, as Hanque Sell puts it, souf". At one of the bang-up bazaars the other evening three souffles collapsed on way from kitchen to table. Finally the headwaiter, interpolating his despair with a few Willie Howard shrugs, suggested something else be ordered. He confided that the pastry cook had finally tossed a tantrum and was toted home in hysteria.

It isn't often a temperamental head chef goes beserk before diners, but it did happen one dinner time at Delmonico's on the avenue. The heavily chandeliered room was loaded with distinguished guests—August Belmont, Harry Lehr, Whitney Warren, John Drew, among others. There was a sudden Comanche whoop from the kitchen, and through the pantry door rushed The Great One, rolling his eyes and beating his chest. He delivered a harangue in Italian on food in general and stuffed Egyptian squab in particular. He had just superintended the cooking of a huge platter of squab when a section of ceiling fell on it. It was too much for an artist.

I haven't bumped into Clifton Webb around town recently, so am not familiar with the latest in pantaloon pleating and sawed off weskiting, but at La Conga, the new dancing hot spot, the other after-theatre, I noticed something recent in evening surtout, long black ankle-length great-coats with shawl collars of deep purple and maroon. Something like the minstrel boys used to parade in.

Thingumbobs: Dr. Dafoe's bill to the Dionne family for delivering the quins was $10 . . . Bob Reud, the press agent from Hickory, N. C., always sees Garbo off for Sweden. A platonic friendship . . . Harry Staton, syndicate chief, has not missed a circus opening in 15 years . . . Frank Case's son Carroll is the dramatic editor of the new Judge . . . Deems Taylor, for relaxation, reads histories of music.

Home made musing: I often wonder if the country doesn't need to hire someone who keeps a ledger like an old Vermont store keeper, up in the maple syrup belt. A crusty old codger who calls a spade a spade, isn't interested in new fangled unproved notions and will not try to convince one a wintry landscape is the vista of a South Sea isle. Everybody talks. Nobody saws wood. Aur so few are recognizing that sound principles never change.

CHECKS FUNDS

Auditing System to Tighten Upon Relief Spending.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A statewide pre-auditing system being established by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson will require county, township and municipal authorities to economize closely in expenditure of the $12,000,000 made available for poor relief by the legislature.

O. P. Van Schoik, deputy auditor in charge of relief affairs, said that state examiners would operate in every county, auditing every bill before it was paid. Even the eligibility of persons to receive relief will be checked.

More than 40 examiners will be employed.

Van Schoik said the examiners had authority to stop payments if they believed a bill was illegal.

Book of the Week

"YOU'RE IN THE RACKET, TOO," by James Curtis (Knopf: $2.50).

"You're in the Racket, Too" is one of those novels which appear frequently enough to keep drug-store rental libraries going. It becomes, in the minds of certain interested persons, a work of art and more expensive because it was written by a man who admits he once made a living by robbery. His name is James Curtis, and his abode is England.

To begin with, the book is so neatly plotted that it is nothing less than wonderful. Mr. Curtis has a crook named Snowey, a streetwalker named Pidgy, a wealthy family with a marriageable daughter and no morals named Krebs, and a pair of quite worthless youngish men, one playing around with Miss Krebs, the other with Mrs. Krebs.

But Mr. Curtis is not subtle enough to keep the two sets separate. When Snowey goes out to rob, it is the Krebs house that he enters. When Dickie (fiance of Miss Krebs) goes on the loose, it is Pidgy he picks up.

When Snowey, trying to make a spare bit of cash, blackmails someone, it is Dickie (by one of those too, too happy chances) whom he catches out with Pidgy. And in the end, the whole thing works out so wonderfully that one can only just believe it. Or perhaps one can't believe it at all. This reader couldn't.

Just the same, the book has two important merits. One is that it proves (if it is authentic) how inferior English slang is to American. The other is that Curtis has had the sense to make his wealthy Krebs family just as cheap and as hag-ridden as Snowey and Pidgy. The device gives a faint glow of truth to the proceedings at times; individual scenes do the same. One of these is the chapter telling how Snowey robbed the Krebs family. On the other hand, the whole business of the blackmailing falls flat.

In the end, many will return to the matter of the slang. It reads as if it were an exact translation; one can hear those high, nasal voices intoning it, and it's not amusing.—J. S.

6 U. S. 'Flying Fortresses' Cross Panama Canal Zone

BOMBERS FLY 1,100 MILES IN SIX HOURS

Planes, Headed For Brazil on Goodwill Flight, Schedule Peru as First Stop.

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—Six huge army bombers on a non-stop goodwill flight from Miami to Peru crossed the Panama Canal zone early today and sped onward.

A radio message received at Chapman Field here said the craft were directly over the canal at 7:13 a. m. (EST) and were proceeding to Lima, capital of Peru, unless forced back by weather.

The planes flew the 1,100 miles across the Caribbean Sea in 6 hours 30 minutes. They still were 1,595 miles from their goal.

Stop Overnight.

At Lima the huge "flying fortresses" will stop overnight before undertaking another 2,532-mile non-stop flight to Buenos Aires, where they will take part in exercises at the inauguration of President-elect Roberto M. Ortiz of Argentina.

They left the municipal airport at Miami at 12:55 a. m., today and disappeared in the darkness to the south. Regularly they radioed their progress to the army field here.

At 2 a. m. they were over Cuba. Radio messages were exchanged between Lieut. Col. Robert Olds and Secretary of War Woodring as the craft reached the open Caribbean.

A 20-mile headwind slowed them down until they were far over the sea. Then they ran clear of it and their speed jumped to 234 statute miles per hour.

Forty-nine officers and men were on the flight, the most ambitious non-stop mass formation the Army has ever undertaken.

The airmen were prepared to land at France Field, Canal Zone, or Santiago, Chile, should tropical rainy season weather conditions cause dangerous flying.

Each plane carried 2,400 gallons of gasoline, weighing seven tons. With their crews and equipment the bombers weighed about 20 tons each. No military equipment was aboard.

The planes have wingspread of 105 feet and are 75 feet in length.

VOTES TO END WRANGLE OVER NAVY MEASURE

Senate Committee Decides to Silence Foes' Testimony; Deadline Saturday.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — After a long wrangling, the house naval affairs committee today voted 17 to 3 to shut off opposition testimony to the $800,000,000 naval expansion program on Saturday.

In a session marked by alternately bitter and hilarious proceedings during which members shook their fingers in each other's faces and engaged in scathingly denunciatory exchanges, the committee finally reached its decision to grant two more days to opposition witnesses.

Witness Silent.

During the debate William G. Dubose, chief of naval construction, rear admiral who had taken the witness stand to testify as the session opened, sat patiently by in amused silence.

A joint attempt by Chairman Vinson (D) of Georgia, and Rep. Maas of Minnesota, ranking Republican, to shut off further oral testimony by opposition witnesses immediately, precipitated the uproar. Before the committee, was a request that five opposition witnesses, Lester P. Barlow, described as the inventor of the aerial bomb used in the World war, Benjamin Marsh of the Peoples' lobby, Mauritz Halgren, former Baltimore editorial writer, Dr. Thomas Healy, author, and Boake Carter, radio columnist, be permitted to appear.

"I think we have to set a time when we can shut all this off so we can get down to the bill to wind up this hearing as rapidly as possible," said Vinson.

"Never before has there been a record which contained so much irrelevant matter."

He pointed out that of the 14 days of hearings so far, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, took seven in support of the measure, opposition witnesses having the balance.

A Farmer's Diary

Feb. 16.

THIS morning before I started from home, my wife gave me a shoe, that I might purchase a new pair the proper size for my boy almost three. All day I held that little, worn battered, old shoe in my pocket, handled it many times, and touched the broken toe and shattered heel. I had all that was left of a little boys shoe except the memories of all the happy days he wore them on his tiny feet.

How they would turn green as he ran in the wet grass, how I pulled a screaming little boy from the sticky clay and found the shoes buried still deeper, how he lost them on the lawn, to be found a few days later.

When first he put them on he jumped and slid about the room on the smooth soles and wondered if they would squeak like Daddy's. When bedtime came, he wept until I let him fold them in his arms and carry them along to bed. When all was quiet, and I knew he had fallen asleep, I went up. I pulled the cover back, and there in fond embrace, he held his shoes. His little mouth was wreathed in a smile. He had kissed his treasure and gone to sleep.

I watched as he lay there, in a deep and peaceful slumber, and wondered what his dream world was. —By C. A. B.

Labor Leaders Extorted $1,200, Cleveland Prosecutor Says.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Counsel for John E. McGee and Don A. Campbell, labor leaders on trial charged with extortion, attacked today a story of alleged racketeering related by Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan.

The prosecutor told a common pleas court jury of six men and six women yesterday evidence would prove that Vernon Stouffer, restaurant chain president, paid McGee $1,200 in order to have plate glass windows installed in a new Euclid avenue resturant in 1936.

McGee, president of the laborers district council, then was business agent for the window washers' union, Cullitan said.

LEGION 'BRINGS BACK' LINCOLN, WASHINGTON TO SEE '38 WONDERS

General George Washington and his wife, and President and Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, came back last night for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. 1938, to look in wonderment at models of strange birds called airplanes and vehicles known as automobiles.

They came to the American Legion home where 250 members of McVey Post and its auxiliary gathered to commemorate the birthdays of the two great Americans. The program centered around a sketch in which the two leaders returned with their wives to see the wonders of 1938, and to leave a message for the future.

An unusual feature of the program was a table running the full length of the room which held several hundred articles and represented the march of progress from Washington's time to the present. The complete evolution of illumination from the tallow candle, through the different stages of lamps to the present electrified bulbs, was shown. From the fancy coaches of Colonial America to the high powered auto and airplane of today, the development of speed transportation was displayed. In addition there were models of the first telephone and all of the changes models up to the cradle phone.

Against an appropriate musical background, provided by organ music and a chorus singing songs of the different periods in history, the characters were introduced. First came two soldiers of the Revolution, and then two of the Civil war. These were followed by two soldiers in the uniforms of '98 and two in World war khaki.

Mr. and Mrs. 1938 (Judge G. H. Kalbfleisch and Mrs. Margery Ludwig), greeted Gen. and Mrs. Washington, and in turn President and Mrs. Lincoln, with Tad, their son.

Washington's departing message was to uphold and preserve the basic principles of the Constitution, while the Civil war president urged the country today to respect and cherish the flag and the form of government it represents.

The characters of Washington and his wife were played by R. W. Stephenson and Mrs. Eugene Flory, while James Brownssombe and Mrs. P. C. Maxwell were the Lincolns with William Kochheiser acting as Tad Lincoln.

The program and the display of antiques were arranged by Commander L. A. Cook of McVey Post. Dr. C. I. Kuntz, vice commander of the Fifth district, talked briefly on "Our Patriotic Heritage," urging Legionnaires to support the Legion program for a permanent peace.

A buffet supper was served before the program.

TELLS PROBERS DAVEY GIVEN $25,000 'FEE'

Witness Says General Motors Contributed on Promise of State Business.

ed Bradley to continue.

Bradley then disclosed the "50 per cent" arrangement.

Says Davey Got Half.

He testified he was to receive 10 to 20 per cent commission on all goods General Motors sold in Ohio, and asserted Davey was to receive half Bradley's commissions.

Bradley, now a salesman for an asphalt company, told the investigators he wanted "to make it plain" that he had no business dealings with Davey. "My dealings dealings with Davey. "My dealings

"How much did Davey give you for your New York trip?" Metzenbaum asked.

"I can't tell you exactly what it was—he would hand it out in $100 or $200 chunks." Bradley replied.

Then the Cleveland salesman went on to say he "always had $200" in his bank account at the start of each week, that it was kept at a $200 level after depletions during the week.

"Who paid your expenses while you were in New York?"

"The expenses of my room were applied to Davey's account. He made all the arrangements," Bradley said.

"Have you given us a fair resume of the conference there?"

"Yes, I have."

'All Agreeable.'

Bradley asserted Tramper said "everything's agreeable" and added $25,000 would be paid to Governor Davey's campaign fund by General Motors.

"'But how should I handle the money?'" Bradley quoted Tramper as saying.

"Davey told Tramper: 'I have a very dear and near political friend in Ohio who will handle all my funds'," the witness continued.

"'Who is that?' Tramper asked."

At this point, the salesman related, Davey pulled a slip of paper and handed it to Tramper.

"That piece of paper had the name of Francis W. Poulson," Bradley said.

Before the committee members went to Cleveland, Metzenbaum announced in Columbus, that an unnamed expert would testify before the committee in its investigation of "hot mixed" paving material sales, upon which the state highway department was said to have been overcharged $1,000,000 during 1937.

Although Metzenbaum declined to name his star witness, he said his testimony "could not be disputed by anyone, friend or foe."

No sessions of the committee were held in Columbus today. Chairman Ralph J. Seidner (D., Mahoning) announced, because three members of the committee were ill. The other committee members and Metzenbaum came to Cleveland to hear Bradley's testimony.

Compares Costs.

Concerning the hot mix investigation, Seidner said that if comparisons of what the state paid and what Franklin county and two municipalities paid were representative, "the hot mix crowd charged the state at least $1,000,000 excessively in 1937."

The committee received testimony that highway contractors affiliated with the Hot Mixed Bituminous Paving Industry of Ohio, Inc., received from $3.40 to $8.65 more from the state highway department for asphaltic concrete than they were paid by Franklin county and by Upper Arlington and Grandview Heights, Columbus suburbs.

Metzenbaum described more than 30 instances in which an association member was the sole bidder on a "hot mix" job, in which groups of members submitted the same bids, and in which bids were identical to the cost estimated by the state's engineers.

Refers To 'Juggle.'

The attorney, who called the "hot mix" association a "combination in restraint of trade," pointed to the duplicate and triplicate bids as "striking evidence of how the association members juggled the state of Ohio as they saw fit to by matching bids."

Two contracts awarded the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company were among the many awarded members of the hot mix association, the committee was told. One, on a job in Ashland county, called for 2,402 cubic yards, on which the state estimated the cost at $12.85 a yard. Mansfield Asphalt and Cleveland Trinidad, also member of the association each bid $12.85, and the Mansfield company got the contract.

On the other, a Crawford county job calling for 22,649 square yards, on which the state estimated the cost at 47 cents, Mansfield Asphalt and Muskingum Valley and Supply company, Zanesville, submitted identical bids of 47 cents. The Mansfield firm got the job.

'Falsehoods' Davey Says of Testimony.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—When informed of the testimony of Lee Bradley before the senate graft investigating committee in Cleveland today, Governor Martin L. Davey said:

"These statements are slanderous falsehoods. If he dares to make them outside of the senate committee, where he is protected by immunity, he will go to jail for criminal libel."

State Democratic Chairman Francis Poulson said:

"Bradley claimed he had spent his own money during the 1934 campaign and was entitled to be reimbursed. We did give him a check for $400 for work of a political nature in that campaign."

HITLER ORDERS 'RED' PURGE IN NAZI AUSTRIA

Dictator Orders Austrian Minister of Bring State Under Swastika Rule.

themselves with advice and counsel from Berlin.

Future negotiations between the Austrian and German governments will be confined to what were termed "big time policies."—a phrase used as a collective reference to Nazi expansion throughout central Europe.

Studies Police Program.

When Seyss-Inquart had finished his lesson at the fuehrer's hands, he was taken to Gestapo headquarters and there permitted to study Germany's regular police organization and other "security measures" undertaken here to guard the Reich against communism.

It was taken for granted Austria will soon receive large doses of anti-Bolshevik propaganda along the lines of these German "security measures." The close military co-operation revealed by International News Service yesterday will be welded into a definite program through contacts between the Austrian and German military staffs.

Meanwhile, Nazis both in Germany and Austria jubilantly predicted an open "anschluss" is only a question of time. As an indication of the close co-operation, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbel's propaganda sheet "Der Angriff" was distributed openly in Vienna today for the first time.

HITLER'S PATH STILL BLOCKED

Writer Says Berlin-Rome Axis Strained Not Strengthened By Nazi 'Dry Putsch.'

Schuschnigg of Austria believe they have outsmarted Hitler.

Schuschnigg, it is true, submitted to Hitler's demands to appoint Dr. Seyss-Inquart as Austrian minister of interior and security. But at the same time they retained Police Chief Skubl, who is a devoted friend and old classmate of Schuschnigg at the famous Jesuit school, Stella Mattutima.

Seyss-Inquart has to promise loyalty to Schuschnigg and Hitler likewise promised to suppress illegal Nazi organizations in Austria.

No Austrian expects such promises to be carried out, but if they are not Skubl is always there with actual executive power to act constantly as a check upon Seyss-Inquart.

Furthermore, Chancellor Schuschnigg retains the army, which in matters of civil war and revolt is decisive.

In Austria's post-war disorders, it was always the army which took control from the police and settled matters.

Taking all these things into consideration, Viennese observers today are not inclined to take the same gloomy view that they adopted when they first heard the bad news of Hitler's coupe in Austria.

The significance of Hitler's victory, however, goes beyond the fate of Austria. In the first place, it revealed the true meaning of Hitler's army purge. We know now that one of the principal reasons for dismissal of Gen. Werner Von Fritsch, who formerly was Germany's commander-in-chief of the army, was because he and other members of the general staff were opposed to use of the German army against Austria.

Hitler not only succeeded in dismissing the most powerful officers of the Germany army with impunity, but thereupon proceeded to carry out the very program against which they protested.

For it was by a deliberate threat of armed force that Hitler won his victory over Schuschnigg. Under the guise of maneuvers, Hitler moved a section of his army to the Austrian frontier and the result showed that neither France nor England would move a finger to save Austria.

Hitler's success proved to the German army and Nazi party once more that "the fuehrer is always right"—a point he had demonstrated once before when he reoccupied the Rhineland over the protests of his general staff, which told him they would have to retreat if the French marched into the Rhine.

Now the conservative German army men have been given another impressive demonstration that Hitler knows what he is talking about, and it is believed the radicals of the Nazi party will be encouraged to believe they now can do as they like in Central Europe.

Shelby, Madison Girls Tied In Good Citizenship Contest.

A senior girl in Shelby high school and another in Madison high scored 95 points each to lead Richland county entries in a good citizenship contest conducted Feb. 5 by the state chapter of Daughters of American Revolution, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, had been informed today.

The top-ranking seniors were Betty Jane Hollenbaugh, Shelby, and Evelyn Butler, Madison township, while Bette Greene, Mansfield, was second with 92 points.

Since the highest score possible in the contest was 125 points, Robinson said it was doubtful if the Richland county entries would rank high enough to win recognition in the state. The winner of first place in the state will receive an all-expense trip to Washington, D. C., and the five runners-up will be guests of the D. A. R. in Columbus for two days.

The other Richland entries in the contest were Mary Baker, Springfield township, who scored 84 points, and Eileen Hammett, Lucas, 75 points. The contest was open only to senior girls.

PACT TO LIMIT ARMS ONLY WAY TO HALT 'RACE'

Writer Points Oue Agreement In Next 10 Months Would Stop Huge Spending.

Editor's Note: The final dispatch in a series on national defense by Lyle C. Wilson, Washington manager of the United Press, follows.

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Agreement on international limitation of armament within the next 10 months seems today to be the alternative to a costly world-wide naval race at the expense of taxpayers in every quarter of the globe.

Prospects for naval limitation are not bright although spokesmen for the United States, Japan and Great Britain, the three major naval powers, have within the past 10 days formally endorsed arms limitation or reduction.

These hopeful statements are brutally modified by the fact that Great Britain and the United States, with much in common, have been able over the years to find a mutually acceptable basis of limitation only with the greatest difficulty. Japan on the one hand and th two English-speaking powers on the other have not been able to find common ground at all.

But the United States and Great Britain now are in comparative accord on naval limitation. American naval strategists have modified their insistence on the big 10,000-ton, 8-inch gun type of cruiser which the British did not want the United States to possess in large numbers.

As between Japan and the Anglo-American theory of naval limitation disagreement steadily widened from the 1922 Washington arms conference until Japans delegates finally bolted the latest of these conferences which met in London in 1936.

Ten months is taken as the probable grade period before the naval race begins in earnest because the new American program for construction of three more battleships and 66 lesser vessels scarcely would be underway before then. Once the United States begins to lay keels it is not likely to scrap vessels even before completion. Whether the American [illegible] will be compelled to raise the entire $800,000,000 [illegible] the new program is to cost will depend on developments after first keels are laid. The bill will provide that the program may be interrupted any time to comply with any arms limitation agreement which may be reached.

Mr. Roosevelts' strategy in proposing an emergency building program to be completed over a period of years was explained in terms of need for national defense. Another factor was the thought that the United States, by demonsrating willingness in addition to undoubted ability to spend billions on arms, might persuade less wealthy nations to reconsider the economic hazards of unlimited naval construction.

Japan's confident reply to that strategy was uttered by Vice Navy Minister Isoroku Yamamoto in a statement to the United Press. He said "means will be found" if Japan must expand her fleet to meet competitive building .

Freedom Looms for Co-Ed 'Tarzan', Accused of Murder

EXPECT JUDGE TO GRANT PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL

Defense Holds State Failed to Prove Girl Athlete Killed Child, 5.

BULLETIN

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Mary K. O'Connor took the witness stand today in her own defense in slaying of 5-year-old Nancy Glenn after Judge Joseph Sloane had denied her counsel's motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA — The trial of Mary Keenan O'Connor, 19, neared its conclusion today and there was a possibility that Judge Joseph Sloane might end it before it ever gets to the jury by speaking two words—"motion granted."

He has before him a motion by William A. Gray, defense counsel, to dismiss the case on the grounds that the commonwealth has failed to produce evidence that Miss O'Connor, an athletic girl known to her college classmates as "Tarzan," killed Nancy Glenn, 5. Judge Sloane promised counsel he would rule on the motion at this morning's session.

State Rests Case.

Should he deny the motion, Gray will open the defense's case, probably by calling Miss O'Connor to testify. The commonwealth rested late yesterday after Assistant District Attorney Charles Gordon had produced four policemen who swore that she confessed, orally and in writing, that she struck and killed Nancy last Labor day because Nancy insisted on being taken for a ride on a bicycle. None of them, however, was able to produce a confession with Miss O'Connor's signature on it; they all contended she had dictated the confession to them but refused to sign it.

Prosecutor Gordon refused to question detailedly Mrs. Marie Phillips, member of the American gymnastics team at the 1936 Olympic games and Miss O'Connor's best friend, who had been prepared to tell how the defendant came to her last autumn and confessed the crime. Gordon asked Mrs. Phillips only one question—whether she was a client of Defense Attorney Gray. She answered "yes."

Freed of Charge.

The attorney represented her and Miss O'Connor when they were arrested on a morals charge which was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Gordon said later he did not question the witness further because he did not want to be put in the position of calling a witness who was a client of the defense counsel.

Gray, in asking dismissal of the case, contended the commonwealth had proved his case, instead of its own, in the two days of its testimony. He conceded that Miss O'Connor might have struck Nancy with her fist and knocked her unconscious. But, he argued, the blow was not the cause of death.

Mr. Pealer was born in a log cabin near his present farm, on which he has resided most of his life. His wife will celebrate her 80th birthday in April. Both are in good health and interested in activities on the farm.

Two other children are Mrs. Don L. Rimmer and Mrs. Pearl Shafter, both of Mansfield.

Edward Davis, railroad man who is well known in Mansfield, having spent approximately half of his life during the past 43 years here, says he is a living example of the fact that a man can ride a million miles and go nowhere. Davis, passenger conductor on the Pennsylvania system, running between Mansfield and Toledo, made the same trip daily for 43 years, traveling considerably over a million miles. He recently retired and now makes his home in Toledo, but comes to Mansfield frequently—over the same old road.

Floyd Dent, area scout executive, has decided that this week is "surprise week" for him. Tuesday he was surprised when arrested by the Boy Scout "chief of police" on a charge of smoking buggy whips, and taken into municipal court. MARINES WIN

Japs Agree to Keep Troops Out of Defense Sector.

SHANGHAI — (INS) — The United States marines won another victory today—a verbal one—and henceforth Japanese troops will keep out of the American defense sector in Shanghai's international settlement.

A Japanese official agreement to this end followed a series of incidents in which American leathernecks had halted and turned back Japanese patrols at the defense sector gates, frequently after hot arguments had occurred.

The climax was reached when Japanese army authorities and American marine officials met for joint discussions, which ended with a Japanese promise that they would cease attempting to send troop patrols into the United States sector.

FOREIGN TRADE SHOWS GAIN

U. S. Exports, Imports Increase Billion and Half In 1937, Report Says.

WASHINGTON — (U.P) — The commerce department has announced that U. S. foreign trade—exports and imports combined—increased $1,500,000,000 in 1937 over 1936.

Exports during the year totaled $3,346,000,000 (B), an increase of $890,000,000 (M) over 1936.

Imports totaled $3,084,000,000, a gain of $661,000,000 over 1936. This country continued to be the world's leading exporter, the commerce department said, accounting for 13 per cent of all world exports compared with 11.9 per cent in 1936.

The favorable trade balance of the United States—that is, the value of exports over imports—was $261,597,000.

The commerce department said that purchases abroad of products essential to rearmament programs, combined with general improvement in economic conditions during the first three quarters of the year, contributed largely to the expansion of exports.

'NIMBLE' SEARCHES 'GATEWOOD' IN VAIN, LOOKING FOR HIS MASTER

(By Associated Press).

GALLIPOLIS—Nimble, a brownish-white Boston bull dog, scurried nervously today through the eight rooms of Gatewood, the home of Mrs. Oscar Odd McIntyre and her late columnist-husband.

"He's looking for Odd," friends of the family said. "He's lost without him."

Nimble ran between the feet of hundreds of McIntyre's friends who visited the house to pay their final respects to the man credited with making Gallipolis famous nationally.

And as the dog's barks split the quiet of the hours before the noted newspaperman was to be laid to rest in a grave atop Mound Hill, high above the Ohio river, his old cronies recalled his love for dogs.

Funeral services were to be held at 2 p. m. at Gatewood, the home he and Mrs. McIntyre had remodeled but never had visited. The Rev. W. Scott Westerman of the Methodist Episcopal church was to officiate.

McIntyre, who had written of Broadway for two decades, died last Monday in New York. His body was returned yesterday to this, his boyhood home. Tomorrow he would have been 54 and he and Mrs. McIntyre, a native of Gallipolis, would have observed their 30th wedding anniversary.

SPEEDY ACTION PREDICTED IN UPPER HOUSE

House Passes Measure 353 to 23 In Effort to Push Aid For Half Million.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senators spurred by appeals to aid a half million new unemployed rushed consideration today of the $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation.

The house approved the fund last night by the top-heavy vote of 352 to 23. All efforts to make major changes in the measure were overridden. Only one amendment, barring relief to aliens temporarily in this country, was authorized.

Ohioans cast no dissenting vote on the bill. The Ohio roll call included favorable votes by Democrats Aleshire, Ashbrook, Claypool, Crosser, Dixon, Eleger, Fletcher, Harlan, Harter, Hunter, Imhoff, Kirwan Lamneck, McSweeney, Secrist, Sweeney and Thom and Republican White.

Vote Due Monday.

Senate leaders expect to pass the bill Monday at the latest. There was a possibility they might be able to complete its consideration tomorrow, but the anti-lynching squabble may hamper such speedy action.

Leaders of the southern filibuster against the anti-lynching bill indicated they would oppose a temporary interruption to debate relief. Instead, they want the senate by a majority vote to lay aside the anti-lynching bill for the remainder of the session.

Although sponsors declared they would continue efforts to vote on the anti-lynching bill, they were disheatened by defeat yesterday of their motion to limit debate.

Most senators agreed the relief fund would be approved, although they said some effort probably would be made to increase the amount.

The house killed, 189 to 71, a proposal by Rep. Voorhis (D-Calif) to increase the appropriation to $400,000,000.

The Works Progress administration, which has on hand about $490,000,000 of its regular $1,500,000,000 appropriation, will administer the additional relief fund. The WPA has reported to congress that the money would keep at least 2,000,000 persons on the relief rolls until June 30.

HELD IN DAYTON

Two Men Suspected in Thefts Here, Accused of Burglary.

A Shelby man and his Mansfield accomplice, suspected here in connection with the theft of several electric sweepers in recent weeks, were held today by authorities at Dayton on charges of burglary and larceny.

Associated Press dispatches said that Carlton Zeiters, 27, of Shelby, alias William Payne, and his accomplice, William Dale, 26, of Mansfield, had confessed to a series of Dayton burglaries in the past several weeks in which 12 electric sweepers had been taken.

Zeiters who signed a confession the dispatches said, was wanted by authorities in Urbana, Springfield and Xenia, on burglary charges. Records at the Mansfield reformatory show that Zeiters was paroled May 15, 1935, after serving two years on a one to 15 year sentence for burglary.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said the men were suspected in the looting of several homes of sweepers here in the past several weeks.

Sheriff E. P. Long went to Dayton today to question the pair concerning recent thefts here.

JAILED AS CAR INJURES FIVE

Sanitarium Orderly Arrested After Fleeing Police Twice.

CLEVELAND — (INS) —Virgil Denton, 25, who twice fled from police after his car plowed into a group of highway workers and injured five, today was charged with reckless driving.

Denton, a sanitarium orderly, was arrested at Union terminal here as he prepared to board a train for Paris, Ill. He had broken away from officers twice after the accident.

Jack Wells, 45, one of the men struck by the car, was reported in serious condition at Berea Community hospital. The other four were less seriously hurt.

BARR FUNERAL FRIDAY

HAYESVILLE—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Jane Barr, 65, of Hayesville, who died in the Mansfield General hospital yesterday, will be held at the Ziegler funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Friday with Rev. G. H. Volpitto of the Loudonville Presbyterian church officiating. Burial will be in the Hayesville cemetery.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The Great Relief Muddle.

THE REQUEST of the president for $250,000,000 additional to meet relief demands between now and July 1, when considered with the authoritative statement that in New York one-sixth of the population is now getting some form of relief, again draws attention to the fact that of all our national problems this is the biggest, the most vital and the one toward the solution of which we have made the least progress.

ON THE contiary, as each year passes, the cost and the size of the relief load upon cities, states and nation grows And, strange to say, it by no means diminishes when business is good in the same degree it increases when business is bad, thus defying the laws of logic and offering irrefutable evidence that there is something rotten in the way the whole scheme is administered. Whether politics is mainly responsible, or the larger blame is to be laid upon popular inertia, or whether it is a combination of the two, is not easy to prove. The truth is that it is almost impossible to get accurate data on the relief situation, and there is neither real system nor understanding co-operation between local communities and federal authorities. Their scale of expense is different; they overlap and duplicate; they have no common yardstick by which they measure either per capita costs or results. And the term "unemployable" is so flexible that it can be made to mean anything the authorities assert it means.

THERE ARE many allegations about the relief burden. For example, there is the charge that many citizens who used to support—and still could—their impecunious and unemployed relatives, now turn them over to relief. There is also the charge that once on WPA relief the disposition of many is to stay. They do not want jobs and would not take them if offered. Another is that labor leaders utilize the relief rolls as a means of promoting strikes without having to support strikers out of their own treasuries. There is, further, the charge that there are on the rolls nearly a million aliens who have no right to be in the country at all. None of these things, of course, means that there are not on relief a vast number who, through no fault of their own, are out of work, unable to live without help and entitled to be relieved. What they do mean, however, is that relief is not limited to these, and that even to these, under the specious plea of "preserving their morale," relief is extended in the most extravagant and inefficient form.

THESE ARE facts which members of congress hesitate to assert for two reasons. One is a natural distaste for being denounced as willing to see people starve and being concerned only about money, which is practically the only form answers to the charge that the whole relief business is a botch have ever taken. The other is because of the heavy pressure from mayors and governors for a greater and greater share of the federal funds. The net result is that they continue to vote for these immense lump sums without any restriction upon their expenditure and with the sure knowledge that they give the administration a power that can be used against them in their districts and states.

THEY KNOW, of course, that the possession of this power makes its political use practically irresistible. None the less, rather than be pictured as cruel and inhuman, they vote to continue a system which they know to be hugely wasteful and nationally weakening; when they know that just as much relief can be given at vastly less cost; when they know that all the talk about "preserving morale" is twaddle; when they know the danger that this crushing burden will be permanently riveted upon us—in good times as well as bad; when they know that in the end it will bankrupt local and national governments together; when the combined total cost, according to Mr. David Lawrence, has now reached four billion a year.

* * *

IF THERE is one thing which should be wholly free from politics, in which neither pride of opinion nor partisanship should play any part at all; in which everybody should be concerned in finding the soundest possible method; in which, while no one should be permitted to starve, there should be no room for imposition, and waste should be a crime—relief is that thing. It would be hard, indeed, to find anyone who will not agree with that. Yet no one, aside from relief officials, who have no choice, pretends that our relief standards even approximately meet those requirements. And one of the greatest barriers to a realistic view of this situation is the use for relief of the Social Security receipts, which, by making borrowing in the open market unnecessary, anaesthetizes the people to the steady increase in the deficit and blinds them to the pregnant fact that relief is being financed out of the pay-roll taxes, supposedly held in trust for the aged and unemployed.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Of Human Hearts" is a film of great sentimental power. Clarence Brown's new production projects again a favorite movie theme, parental sacrifice unrequited by a thoughtless child, and the film capitalizes expertly on all the available heart-tugs.

This time the setting, a pioneer Ohio river community in days preceding and during the Civil war, adds rugged strength to the telling, the camera capturing remarkably the atmosphere and feeling of a time and place in American life. For this beautifully photographed album of rural scenes, and even more notably for its parade of characterizations, "Of Human Hearts" achieves distinction.

The role of an itinerant preacher called to the river settlement and there rewarded parsimoniously by his congregation is the sort of meat on which Walter Huston thrives. As his wife, sensitive to their position as virtual charity wards of the community but loyal and uncomplaining, Beulah Bondi gives another portrait worthy of the screen's leading character actress, especially in those scenes wherein she strives vainly to bring her husband and son to mutual understanding. The boy, hating the pauperish existence and rebelling against his father's righteous strictness, is played remarkably by Gene Reynolds, and grows up to give James Stewart a most effective role.

Charles Coburn of the stage makes his movie debut as the kindly, drunkard doctor. Guy Kibbee and Charley Grapewin are village characters, with Leona Roberts, Gene Lockhart, Sterling Holloway, Leatrice Joy Gilbert (daughter of the late John) and Ann Rutherford figuring briefly. John Carradine, as President Lincoln in the climactic sequence which sends the boy back to his neglected mother, should be long remembered.

Four reformed gangsters attempting to dispose of the bodies of four of their former enemies—that doesn't sound like comedy, does it? But "A Slight Case of Murder" is one of the funniest of recent films.

The Runyan-Lindsay play has been transferred to the screen for consistent laughs. The idea may sound offensive, but Lloyd Bacon has directed so that even the most squeamish will take the picture as it is intended. Edward G. Robinson, playing his first comedy role in some time, is the head ex-gangster, Ruth Donnelly his wife. Allen Jenkins, Harold Huber and Edward Brophy are his confederates, with Jane Bryan and Willard Parker as the slight love interest.

"Start Cheering" is the newest of the nutty collegiate musicals. Charles Starrett plays a movie star who chucks his contract to attend college. Walter Connolly is his agent who does his darndest to get the lad expelled. Jimmy Durante, returning to films after an absence, gets most of the laughs. Joan Perry is the girl. Gertrude Niesen sings, Louis Prima and Johnny Green provide the music, and numerous specialties are given opportunity, along with Raymond Walburn. Broderick Crawford, Ernest Truex, Al Rogell directed.

Bad Tempered Miss Seeks Advice

By VIRGINIA LEE

How can B. C. O. control her temper when she is with a certain boy? She enjoys his company and he hers but they usually have an argument when they are out together and that spoils their good times.

She is an only child and thinks she may be a bit spoiled. They often go out as a foursome with B. C. O.'s girl friend and her boy friend. This girl tells B. C. O. she should count ten or try some other method of holding her temper. The two young people don't go "steady" but are together frequently although each goes out occasionally with others.

"Miss Lee, do you think that if I can control this temper I would have more of a chance with 'O'?" she asks.

Of course anyone is a much pleasanter companion if they do not lose their temper frequently, B. C. O. There is no doubt about that. I presume many a man who has been attracted to a pretty girl has decided that he had better not marry her after seeing a few displays of temper.

I think the trouble with you and your boy friend is that when you are with him you are in an emotional state, and so you "fly off the handle," to put it very inelegantly, just because of this tension. And so I think that if you can manage to stop, look and listen when you are tempted to make a snappy comeback, and think to yourself, "Now, if a girl said or did that I wouldn't flare up over it, so why should I when 'O' says or does it"? that would help.

Men say they like a girl "with spirit," and undoubtedly that is true. But when a girl's "spirit" causes her to make a scene over every little thing that irks her the least bit, it gets a little tiresome, don't you think? Not that you do that, of course, but you know what I mean.

We all lose our tempers occasionally, but the less we do and the more serene our demeanor, the happier we are, I know, and the more lovable. Hope I have helped you a little, little girl.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, February 18.

This may be a particularly active and progressive day, with much promise of growth, initiative and accomplishment, judging by a long chain of interesting astral configurations. Writings, contracts, speculations, investments, partnerships and finances should prosper, but this prosperous status may be complicated by reckless, quarrelsome deeds with legal involvements. Prudence and precaution are recommended; be wise in expenditures.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is should take advantage of a year of splendid promise and opportunity. Finances should gain by investments, speculations, new contracts, writings, promotion and publicity, with enhanced personal popularity and prestige. But these may be jeopardized by rash, impulsive or quarrelsome conduct, which might have legal developments. Be wise, prudent, not extravagant or overindulgent.

A child born on this day may be exceedingly active, lively, energetic and ambitious, and should carve out a successful, progressive and prosperous career, with much personal popularity and prestige. It may be somewhat hampered by an impetuous, reckless and extravagant or indulgent nature.

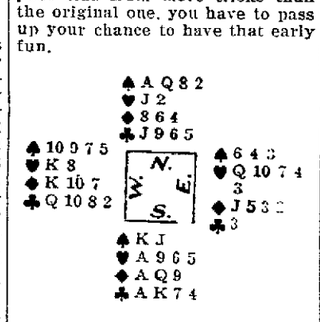
RESIST TEMPTATION

WHO DOESN'T get a kick out of managing to take the first trick with some extremely small spot card? By so doing you save all your larger ones for later use. But if taking the first trick cheaply means that you block your side from more tricks than the original one, you have to pass up your chance to have that early fun.



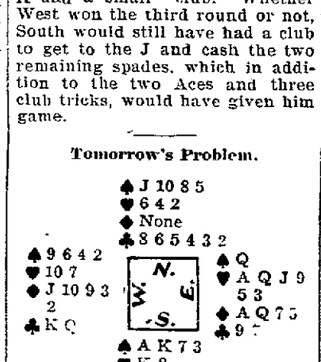
(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Three-No Trumps by South was the final contract on this deal, South having opened with 1-No Trump. North bidding two and South three.

When the club 2 was led, the 5 was played from dummy, the 3 by East and without thinking South played the 4. When he did he ruined his chance of ever making the contract. The heart 2 was led and the 9 finessed, which lost to West's Q. West returned the spade 10, which South won with the J. He cashed the spade K and led the club 7, hoping west would allow the J to win. West, who had been able to get a count on the suit, jumped in with the Q, and from that point on it was hopeless for declarer to enter the dummy.

Had he won the first lead of clubs with an honor and then cashed his two high spades, he could have followed with the club K and a small club. Whether West won the third round or not, South would still have had a club to get to the J and cash the two remaining spades, which in addition to the two Aces and three club tricks, would have given him game.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is South's safest play for 4-Spades, the heart 10 being the opening lead? After winning the first trick with the A, East returned the heart Q.

Winter Sport Fiends Must Watch Hands

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty."

BACK IN the Victorian age, according to all accounts, most women spent their entire winter snugly by the fireside. Winter sports were considered extremely hazardous, and fit for the fearless and brawny male of the specie only. But that's all been changed now. Wherever you find a sizeable patch of snow and a hill you'll find a batch of skiers. And there are just as many women among them as men!

I very much approve of the great interest women are now showing in this keenest of winter sports. If you intend becoming a ski enthusiast, however, do go about the thing sensibly, and take care of your eyes. The sun's glare on snowy hillsides, on glittering ice and on any like reflecting mediums, tends to strain the eyes and cause the formation of tiny squint lines about them, which gives them a tired, fatigued appearance that is very aging.

To give the eyes proper protection, you should shield them as much as possible from the glare of the sun on snow and ice, and from the cold winds. The latest thing in ski equipment is dark goggles of insinglass, with side ventilators and an adjustable band to keep them firmly in place. These goggles not only keep any glittering light from making you squint, but also protect the eyes from direct exposure to cold and wind.

In addition, it is a good plan to smooth a rich tissue cream around your eyes before hitting a snowy trail. If you dust a bit of powder over the lubricant, the grease won't be the least bit apparent, and it will certainly help to keep your eyes fresh and youthful in appearance.

It is also a good idea to give the eyes resting treatments whenever they feel tired or strained. Try palming your eyes after you've returned from a ski jaunt. Or if you prefer, moisten little squares of cotton with cold water or which hazel, and place them over your eyes while you rest and relax for 10 or 15 minutes.

A good many skiers are inclined to forget about their hands. And hands do not thrive on neglect during the winter months. Red, chapped wrists and harsh, rough skinned hands are anything but attractive, yet these conditions inevitably result from neglect.

Ski experts claim that it is a good idea to plunge the hands in cold, salty water once or twice a day, if you can stand the shock. For this procedure, they say, will help to make the surface of the skin firm and less susceptible to cold.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

If Mary herself had any qualms about the outcome of our projected sojourn in the city for the rehearsals of my play, she displayed no hint of them during our motor journey from the farm. Instead, the thermometer of her spirits rose perceptibly as the mileage increased between ourselves and the farmhouse which had seen her emotional parting from Noel.

Instead of the brooding silence which had invested her, she began to chatter almost gaily in her old fashion, with entertaining comments upon the people and places we passed. Then she suddenly put a question, and something indefinable in her accents made me wonder if it had not been purposely sandwiched between her chatter so that I would attach no importance to it.

"Is Uncle Dicky planning to spend any time with us at the hotel?" she asked.

"I don't think so," I answered, and then involuntarily added, "Why?"

"Oh! nothing," Mary answered, and I asked myself if it were my imagination solely that registered an impression of a sudden wariness in her voice. "I just heard him talk about following us in after an hour, and I thought perhaps he meant to share our quarters occasionally."

"He means us to have dinner with him tonight," I said.

"'Blow us to a feed!'" Mary gibed. "You know that was what he really said, now wasn't it?"

"Since you insist, yes," I answered, laughing.

"Where?"

"Why! I suppose anywhere you like," I returned. "He suggested our rooms at the hotel, because he was afraid you'd be too fatigued to go out anywhere."

"I wonder!" she said speculatively, then added hastily:

"What a corking idea of Uncle Dicky's. He always orders the swellest dinners."

"I think he's planning something extra special for us tonight, sort of a welcome home to you and Miss Whitlock and me."

"Oh!" said Miss Whitlock, protestingly. "You mustn't count me in on anything like that. You'll want to be by yourselves."

Mary turned around in her seat and I knew that she was giving the nurse a friendly, expostulating grin.

"Don't you go high hat by me!" she admonished, "or I'll kick your thermometer right through the window the next time you try to stick it in my mouth. Of course you're in on the dinner. If you ever ate one of Uncle Dicky's special order feeds, your tongue would be hanging out from now until dinner time. Mine is, right now."

"Mary! Mary!" I expostulated mechanically from sheer force of habit carried over from the years when she was under my charge, and I tried to regulate her impetuous, exaggerated speech.

"Poor Auntie Madge!" she said to Miss Whitlock. "She's been trying to make me say 'Papa, potatoes, prunes and prisms,' ever since she first took me in hand. But she might as well give me up as the baddest of all bad jobs. I have to quirk my lips instead of pursing them."

"Mary!" I expostulated again, this time with laughter, "if you ever compare me again with that odious Mrs. General of Dickens I'll disown you. She's one of my pet phobias."

Wedding Etiquette Discussed

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I have never been married before, yet am no longer young, and for this reason would rather not wear a white dress and veil. I do, however, want to seem a little more bride-like than would be possible by wearing ordinary clothes. Will you tell me, frankly, what your reaction is to my idea of a pale blue dress and matching tulle veil for myself, and for my attendant, who is my sister, a gold color dress made similarly to mine but worn with a small hat and veil?

Answer: This question is too much one of personal liking, to have anybody decide it except yourself. But since you asked me, it seems to me that blue has the same quality that white has, in that it is becoming to very young people, rather than to older ones. Gold, on the other hand, makes a beautiful bridal dress, and a gold tulle veil would be lovely. Deep cream is also very flattering. But if blue is "your color," then I think you would be perfectly right in choosing it.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it an unusual procedure for a bride-to-be to be dressed as a bride and to wear a veil and yet have only one attendant? I have so many friends and am almost afraid to choose one or two of them to omit the others, and thought for this reason I would have a young sister as an only attendant. She is my only sister.

Answer: It is not at all unusual for a bride to have only one attendant even though she be married in a large church filled with flowers and the bridegroom have eight ushers. It will be quite all right to have no one but your sister. If she is very little, let her take part as a flower girl, or if she is older, as a junior maid of honor.

"I've got another name for her," Mary said mischievously, "which I won't soil your chaste ears by uttering. What's important just now is Uncle Dicky and his plans. But look here! If he starts only an hour behind us—he drives like the devil, remember—he'll be at the hotel almost as soon as we will. We won't have time to get settled before he's there, and then we'll never get settled. You know what Uncle Dicky is. He wants seventeen things at once."
